Big trees felled to begin widening Stanley Boulevard

LIVERMORE — The cutting of eucalyptus trees along a half mile stretch of Stanley Boulevard yesterday marked the beginning of a nine month project to widen the road to a four lane divided highway status. The trees were downed by Heim Brothers of Martinez, the firm which also cleared fences along another half mile stretch of the 3.27 mile project. Only 1.9 miles of the road will actually be widened, according to a spokesman for the county road department.

The $1,219,700 job includes an $865,002.50 contract with the Oakland contracting firm of Gallagher and Burk to widen the road from the entrance of the Lone Star plant to El Caminito Rd. in Livermore.

The remaining sections under construction will be for a transition from two to four lanes on the Pleasanton side of the project.

The project is being financed under a joint venture by Livermore city, county and federal budgets.

The major construction starts next week, according to the county road department. Most traffic will be subject to delays because of trucks hauling dirt away from the earth mounds now lining the south side of the roadway.

Workers will be on the job between 7:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. The work is expected to continue for nine months.

In addition to the major contractor, costs include two trainees ($1,600); work by Southern Pacific Railroad to upgrade several tracks crossing the road ($62,500); utility work by Pacific Gas and Electric Co. which moved a substation ($205,000); striping by the county ($6,000); county furnished materials ($1,000); supplemental work ($16,000); contingencies ($48,397.50) and the county's preliminary engineering ($14,200).

Shortly after the cutting of the eucalyptus trees, motorists began arriving with saws and axes to toss wood into their vans, pick up trucks and automobiles.

Lab labor bill gets by U.S. Senate

WASHINGTON — The LLL collective bargaining amendment passed the Senate Tuesday when moves by Sen. S.I. Hayakawa R-California, to table and weaken it were successively defeated 57-36, and 57-37.

The amendment as passed is sharply changed from an earlier version which was defeated in a House committee. Added are (1) a statement that nothing in the legislation is to be taken as authorization to strike, and (2) provisions for binding arbitration.

The no-strike provision was added to calm University of California management, according to Edie Wilkie, chief aide to Rep. Fortney (Pete) Stark, D-Oakland.

UC runs the lab for the Energy Research and Development Administration.

Stark is the author of the bill. "We were never talking about strikes, anyway," Wilkie said.

Binding arbitration was put in to balance a no-strike provision. Traditionally, binding arbitration is the mechanism organized labor seeks when it cannot strike legally.

It is a mechanism in which a third party rules on a labor management dispute.

Provisions for it are added to each of the two major clauses of the bargaining amendment; the one which permits collective bargaining, and the one which calls for "an impartial grievance procedure."

On collective bargaining, if the two parties cannot agree on who should be recognized to represent labor, the dispute would go to the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, an independent government agency that has been involved in major labor disputes for almost three decades.

If, once negotiations begin, no agreement can be reached, the dispute would go to an offshoot of the FMCS called the Atomic Energy Labor-Management Relations Panel. That 11 person board does not have formal authority to impose a binding settlement but it has often done so upon the agreement of both sides.

Anti-gay Briggs here Friday

LIVERMORE — Controversial gubernatorial candidate State Senator John Briggs (R-Fullerton) will lead off the speakers Friday when the Tri-Valley Republican Assembly holds its annual barbecue at the home of Barbara Adams, 1301 Muddell Lane.

Briggs has picked up the anti-homosexual campaign of Florida orange juice promoter Anita Bryant and has introduced legislation in Sacramento that would prohibit gays from teaching in the public schools.

Briggs, an assemblyman 10 years before starting his first term as senator, will be joined at the barbecue by Assemblyman Ken Maddy (R-Fresno) and Assemblyman Mike Antonovich (R-Burbank).

Maddy, in his fourth term, is contemplating a race for position of governor, but has not officially thrown his hat into the ring.

Reservations may be made by calling 447-5983, 443-2053 or Tri-Valley Republican Assembly President Jim Drush at 846-5900.

Good ol' days

Water used to reach the high water mark on the out-flow tower at Pardee Reservoir near Jackson, as pointed out by Donn Wilson, reservoir superintendent. The body of water, which feeds East Bay Municipal Utilities District users in San Ramon and throughout the East Bay, is down approximately one-third from normal.

Pleasanton council switches to Tuesday

PLEASANTON — City council swears its not upcoming Monday Night Football, but members agreed this week to change their meetings to Tuesdays.

The switch takes effect Aug. 9. Council member Joyce LeClaire was the only dissenter.

The impetus for the change came from councilman Frank Brandes, who said he needs "more time to read the agenda."

Monday is the workers' busiest day of the week, Brandes argued, and with the half-inch thick packet delivered on Thursday of the preceding week, "it means we have to read it over the weekend."

"Yeah," shot back councilman Ken Mercer, "I'd like to have at least some time with my family over the weekend."

Brandes originally called for Wednesday night meetings. But because of conflicting city planning commission sessions, switched to Tuesday evenings.

Chowchilla evidence under siege

OAKLAND — Defense attorneys for the Chowchilla kidnapping suspects threw detailed questions at a sheriff's deputy yesterday in their struggle to keep nearly 5,000 pieces of evidence from being introduced in the case.

City's big insurance hike

City council doesn't like the idea, but Pleasanton will pony up an additional $170,000 to cover next year's insurance premium. The startling $270,000 bill for 1977-78 is $70,000 more than budgeted.

Insurance agent Ben Fernandez told council members it's municipal governments' lack of immunity from suits, and urged council to pressure the state legislature into reforms.

Some cities, like Berkeley, "go naked," said council member Joyce LeClaire, because they can't get insurance. If they lose a suit, they'll have to levy a special assessment to cover their loss.

SRV schools see pupil loss

San Ramon Valley Unified School District would lose 515 students and $25,341,320 in assessed valuation under a proposed unification for Walnut Creek schools that goes to the state Board of Education this week.

Under the plan, Alamo Elementary School would join Walnut Creek's school system.

The shift would hike tax rates in the San Ramon district from $5.98 to $6.05.

Dublin library cost meet

A public meeting about the new Dublin Library building will be held this evening 7:30 in the Dublin Library, 6930 Village Parkway, Dublin. The object will be to discuss whether to pay off the debt for the new library building in a hurry or stretch it out and let future generations help foot the bill.

Some monies have already been collected due to the establishment of a special library taxing district voted in by citizens in 1974. Part of that money has already been used to pay for land on which the new library will be built. The tax rate is 25 cents per $100.

Local officials, including Supervisor Valerie Raymond, will be at the meeting.

For details, see page 21.

Amador board ponders athletic policies

Amador Valley School District trustees last night questioned wording of academic requirements in a position paper for athletics, as reviewed previously by school athletic directors, coaches and boosters.

Primary concern centered on equal standards at each district school. Trustee Frank Damerval emphasized that one set of criteria should be applied as regards athletes at Amador, Dublin and Foothill.

Neil Sweeney, assistant superintendent for instruction, presented the position paper, which is expected to lead to a handbook that will be given youngsters going out for team sports, coaches and boosters.

The district previously asked legal counsel to look at rules and regulations. Sweeney said the proposed regulations and policies governing athletics are in conformity with the law.

Among the historic concerns have been those involving students suspended from teams, and academic requirements for participation.

But when Sweeney contended that district academic requirements for athletics were more stringent than the California Interscholastic Federation (CIF) minimums, a minor controversy arose.

Board member Jack Delaney, Dr. Geraldine Donaldson and Damerval questioned the wording. The CIF minimums state that an athlete must pass four out of six classes the previous semester to be eligible to participate in sports.

The present eligibility requirements state in part;

A teacher may hold an athlete out of practice or contest for any of the following reasons: Class conduct, lack of academic achievement, and lack of participation in a class activity.

A student must participate in a minimum of one period of school to be eligible to take part in any athletic activity for that day.

Use or possession of alcohol, tobacco, illegal drugs or narcotics is prohibited. Any athlete who is positively identified violating this policy by a faculty member is suspended from the team or sport for the remainder of the season, or 60 days, whichever is the greater.

A student may withdraw from a sport without penalty only if he or she confers with the coach and receives consent to leave the sport. Any student who leaves a sport without first receiving the coach's permission is ineligible to the end of the season or 60 days, whichever is greater.

The position paper also states citizenship factors that will determine the student's continued eligibility.

These include continued willful disobedience, habitual profanity and/or open or persistent defiance of the authority of school personnel.

Sweeney said the position paper will be reviewed by athletic directors again before a handbook is published.

Trevarno Road residents face limitations to home projects

LIVERMORE — Ron and Betty Dechant want to put a swimming pool in their sprawling backyard.

Arthur Chick was outside yesterday pruning shrubbery around his new home. Larry Berger is thinking about putting in a patio.

Just your usual happy homeowner type activities. Except that the Dechants and Berbers and Chicks are neighbors on Trevarno Road — a unique little enclave off First Street which the city wants to preserve in its original condition.

There are 12 houses on the quaint old street which was constructed in the 1920's to house Coast Manufacturing Co. employees.

Black walnut trees scatter their fruit along the sidewalks in the fall and keep the entire street cool and shady in summer. Acres of lawns surround stucco houses, each one different, many with more than one fireplace. Flowering vines, tall hedges and fruit trees make Trevarno Road lusher than any Livermore tract.

All 12 houses on Trevarno Road were rented and neglected for the past 30 years. Now, they're being occupied, one by one, by people who can pay the $45,000 it cost for a one-bedroom cottage or $80,000 for one of the two-story, five-bedroom beauties.

And a conflict is brewing over how much the eager new owners will be allowed to "improve" property the general public wants to preserve as an historical area.

Already, the gray stucco and cream or green trim, apparently the old color scheme, has all but disappeared from the street in favor of beige, yellow, pink or pale green stucco. Many of the old trees and hedges, said to be in poor condition and a breeding place for pests, have been torn out.

Indoors, the old-fashioned kitchens are being enlarged and remodeled, floors are being refinished, bathrooms redone. In addition are the repairs — new plumbing, roofing, window screens.

"None of us wants to rototill our lawns to the bare ground and put in colored rocks and astroturf," said homeowner Arthur Chick at Monday's City Council meeting, making councilmen shudder at the mere suggestion.

"But we don't want to have to apply for a permit and wait 30 days in order to trim a hedge!"

Lawyer Dave Madis, who bought the entire street and is now selling off the houses, raised the question of what "original condition" means — since nobody really knows what the original vegetation looked like before it was allowed to run rampant or which houses have already been structurally changed.

The city council agreed to wait two months and then hold another public hearing before deciding whether the area should be rezoned for historical preservation — implying numerous restrictions on changes to the property.

In the meantime, Chick as spokesman for the homeowners' association will meet with the city's historical preservationists to find out just what restrictions and benefits would come with the new zoning.

Mayor Helen Tirsell said the buyers should have been informed by Madis of the city's preservation plans. Councilman Glen Dahlbacka said each homeowner had been saved tens of thousands of dollars in fees because city was allowing the old street and street lights to remain instead of bringing them up to modern city code, strictly because the area was considered historical.

his effort to remove trespassers from the Portola Valley estate of Fred Nickerson Woods III, father of defendant Frederick Ne-hall Woods IV, on July 21, 1976, six days after the kidnapping.

Dow said he and Sgt. Bernie Cervi of the Alameda County Sheriff's Department had been patrolling around the estate when asked by Mr. and Mrs. Woods to remove approximately 100 newspeople as trespassers. When asked where his son was, he elder Woods said he had been in touch with an attorney and would not discuss it.

While driving on the estate, Cervi took down the license number of a dump truck that was later used as the partial basis of a search warrant but was never seized by authorities.

Yanowitz has filed motions asking that all evidence introduced by the prosecution be thrown out, based on alleged illegal search and seizure, or "purposeful" errors in the police affidavit asking for the search warrants.

The defense showed slides of no "No Trespassing" signs lining the interior roads of the estate to Dow, who said he did not recall seeing them when patrolling for trespassers. Monday, Cervi also testified he could not remember any such signs. Attorneys used slides in continuing attempts to show that the dump truck could only be seen from points on the Woods estate. This, coupled with pictures of 17 "No Trespassing" signs, are the basis for defense arguments that police illegally entered the estate to search for evidence.

Prosecuting attorney Alys Rae Boker argued that the photos, taken nine months after the kidnapping, did not prove the signs were in place when deputies made their patrols. Pictures of the dump truck, she stated, were suspect because the vehicle had been removed from the estate, sold, and later returned.

Defense attorney Edward L. Merrill, representing the other two defendants, James Leonard Schoenfeld, 25, and his brother, Richard Allen Schoenfeld, 24, questioned Alameda County Sheriff's Lt. Ed Volpe about items seized in a travel bag in Santa Clara.

Volpe, the first person to talk to bus driver Ed Ray and the 26 Chowchilla schoolchildren upon their release from a van buried in a Livermore rock quarry July 16, 1976, said the bag contained items belonging to some of the young hostages and Ray.

Stark amendment goes to House

The provision for a grievance procedure — formerly consisting of one simple sentence — has been expanded to require binding arbitration if all else fails. It was that provision which Hayakawa moved unsuccessfully to strike after his motion to table the entire amendment failed.

Presumably, it is that provision to which UC most strongly objects. By the time the Stark amendment came to the Senate floor — as part of the big budget bill for the Energy Research and Development Administration — most of the relevant power centers were either supporting it or looking the other way. Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s office had sent a letter endorsing it to Washington.

Another letter was reportedly being circulated in which the Carter administration — in the form of ERDA — objected only to the fact that the legislation came in a money bill rather than the labor committee.

However, Sen. Harrison Williams D-New Jersey, chairman of the Human Relations (formerly Labor) committee, had said he had no objection to not having been allowed to act on the bill.

He said the chosen legislative route was warranted by the unusual nature of the Lab, that is, the fact that unlike many other federal labs, it is run by a state unit, rather than privately.

Without the active opposition of ERDA, the Labor committee, or the Brown administration, UC — which opposes the amendment — was left with only conservative Republicans and some Southern Democrats to rely on.

Even Sen. Jacob Javits, R-New York, the senior Republican on Williams' committee, voted for the amendment, though he said he had some misgivings growing out of his lack of information on the issue.

Williams' and Javits' positions took some of the wind from the opposition argument, which had been based on the House side, in part on the jurisdictional question.

The LLL amendment was added to the larger budget bill mainly on the efforts of Sen. Alan Cranston D-California. It was accepted by Sen. Henry Jackson's D-Washington, Energy and Natural Resources Committee on a voice vote (no head count) and was defended on the floor Tuesday by Sen. Frank Church (D-Idaho), the number two Democrat on the committee.

Having been defeated in a House committee, the Stark amendment is not in the ERDA bill which is expected to come before the full House next week. As of Tuesday, the Stark forces had not decided whether to risk a floor fight there, or to rely on the House-Senate conference, which will follow House passage of the budget bill.

What WC unification means in SR

By KELLY GUST
Times Staff Writer

WALNUT CREEK — The future of five school districts will hang in the balance this week as the state Board of Education reviews the question of unifying this city's schools.

Walnut Creek residents have proposed formation of one district within the city's boundaries. The city is currently divided into five districts — the Walnut Creek Elementary School District (WCESD), the Mt. Diablo Unified School District (MDUSD), the Acalanes Union High School District (AUHSD), the San Ramon Valley Unified School District (SRVUSD) and the Lafayette Elementary School District (LESF).

Unification would mean higher taxes for four of the existing school districts; the current Walnut Creek elementary district would be dissolved.

Property owners in the proposed unified district could expect a lower tax rate than they now face.

Unification would also mean a change of ownership of 11 schools, student transfers and more busing, and the loss of jobs by some present school board members.

The state Board of Education will take testimony on both sides of the question Thursday at 10 a.m. at the San Jose Hyatt House, 1740 N. First St., San Jose.

Walnut Creek unification was placed on the board's agenda after local residents gathered more than 10,000 signatures on petitions in support of the proposal.

The state board will decide to either drop the proposal or put it to a vote.

If the state board agrees to an election, it must then decide whether residents of all affected districts will take part or only those persons residing within the proposed district's boundaries.

Schools to be included in the proposed district are: Buena Vista, Indian Valley, Murwood, Parkmead, Tice Valley and Walnut Heights elementary schools and Parkmead and Walnut Creek intermediate schools, now in the Walnut Creek elementary district; Bancroft, Castlerock, Larkey, San Miguel, Valle Verde and Walnut Acres elementary schools, Foothill Intermediate and Northgate High School, now in the Mt. Diablo district; Alamo Elementary School now in the San Ramon Valley district; and Del Valle and Los Lomas high schools now in the Acalanes district.

The proposed district would have an estimated 12,473 students.

If unification is approved, members of the Walnut Creek Elementary School District Governing Board would be out jobs, as would Pat Bardellini and Carl Hoover of the Mt. Diablo district and Don Galloway of the Acalanes district.

Bardellini, Hoover and Galloway reside within the boundaries of the proposed district.

Board elections would take place at the same time as the unification vote. If the election was held in November and unification approved, the new district would begin operation July 1, 1978.

If the election was delayed until March 1978, a new district could not begin operation before July 1, 1979.

Unification's effect on existing districts, in terms of tax rates, student enrollments and assessed valuations, has been calculated by the Contra Costa County Superintendent of Schools' office. Figures as of July 7 were as follows:

MT. DIABLO

Taxes in the Mt. Diablo district would rise from $4.82 per $100 of assessed valuation to about $4.84. (Tax rates used throughout are 1976-77 figures.)

The Mt. Diablo district would lose 6,815 students and $139,006,025 in assessed valuation.

ACALANES

The tax rate in the Acalanes district would jump from the current $1.78 to $1.99. The district would lose 1,775 students, and $204,458,541 in assessed valuation.

LAFAYETTE

The Lafayette elementary district will lose no schools or students because the land portion it will lose is within Rossmoor, a southwest Walnut Creek retirement community.

SRV trustee resigns

DANVILLE — A recently elected member to the board of the San Ramon Valley Unified School District has resigned.

Ron Harris, one of three newly elected board members, told the board last week he was leaving the area July 15 to start a new job in Dallas, Tex.

Superintendent Allan Petersdorf noted there are several ways of filling the vacancy.

One is by a provisional appointment whereby the new member, appointed by the board, would serve until the next regularly scheduled trustee election in March 1979. The trustees could also call a special election or be petitioned to hold one. A petition, however, must be signed by 5 per cent of the registered voters who voted in the last board election — 266 residents.

Time to review colleges on vocation training

A major review of vocational education was announced Monday by the state Board of Education and the Community College Board of Governors.

The review is the latest step in changes that began in the fall of 1976 when new federal legislation required the preparation of a 5-year state plan for vocational education. The plan has now been approved and sent to Washington.

The thorough review will involve the responsibilities of the Board of Education and the community colleges to prevent duplication of vocational education programs, the funding to school districts and community colleges, and the overall management of vocational education in the state.

Marion Drinker, president of the state Board of Education, and Tom Jones, chairman of the Community College Board of Governors, said, "We must improve vocational education to help students understand the responsibilities of working and earning a living in our society. We must also make sure that students receive the skills that are needed in today's changing job markets."

The review will also reflect the new regulations in the federally required 5-year plan for vocational education that calls for: targeting areas of high unemployment and large numbers of low income families; overcoming sex bias and stereotyping, and developing new programs to meet new skills and job opportunities.

A steering group will make recommendations for improving vocational education. The group includes the president and three members of the state Board of Education, the chair and three members of the Community College Board of Governors, the Superintendent of Public Instruction, and the Chancellor of the Community Colleges.

With the assistance of an ad hoc working group, the steering committee will make recommendations to the state Board of Education and the Community College Board of Governors.

The boards may then consider recommending legislation that will set a comprehensive statewide policy for vocational education. The legislation would also, for the first time, put a definition of the purpose of vocational education, the funding methods, and regulations in state law.

Currently, vocational education is operated under federal regulations. The working group will include people from labor, industry, all levels of education, and the California Advisory Council on Vocational Education and Technical Training.

Japanese exchange students in town

LIVERMORE — The newest foreign exchange program in town, the American Institute of Foreign Study, is bringing several dozen students from Japan for a three-week stay here.

Gail Zwakenberg, the local coordinator, has asked Livermore residents to volunteer their homes for the "short term" visits.

Homes are needed for young women between ages 19 and 28 and some young boys ages 13 to 15.

While in Livermore, the visitors will attend classes in American culture and language at Mendenhall School.

They will be in Livermore from July 25 to Aug. 12. On July 29 they will be treated to a weekend camp-out at Camp Curry in the Yosemite area.

They will also take in an Oakland A's baseball game, visit the Hershey plant in Oakdale, romp through the Cowell Redwoods near Santa Cruz and tour Golden Gate Park in San Francisco.

"The field trips are all paid for," said Zwakenberg, so the American "parents" can spend time and not a lot of money hosting the youngsters.

The students will arrive after a whirlwind tour of Los Angeles, she said. Livermore resident Mona Tennant, formerly of Japan, will give the exchange program participants from both sides of the ocean a brief talk of introduction.

Nine or 10 students still need housing, said Zwakenberg, who urged people interested in offering housing to call her in the afternoons at 443-0715.

County board meets

OAKLAND — The Alameda County Board of Education will hold its annual organizational meeting Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at Francesco's Restaurant, 8520 Pardee at Hegenberger Rd.

The board has three actions on the brief business agenda; to elect a new president and vice president for 1977-78, and to receive a California School Employees Association (CSEA) proposal for 1977-78.

At a previous meeting, the board authorized Superintendent Rock LaFleche to apply for a $67,950 grant from Elementary and Secondary Education Act (ESEA) Title I for neglected and delinquent minors in the special schools.

The county staff was also directed to contact Senator Albert Rodda and Assemblyman Leroy Greene and request that an inflation allowance for the County School Service Fund be included in any school finance measure being considered by the legislature.

The Livermore-Amador Valley is represented on the board by Virginia Bird-sall of Livermore.

Landmark rule

LOS ANGELES (AP) — All handicapped children in California have a constitutional right to a "free and appropriate" education, a Superior Court judge has ruled.

Monday's landmark decision by Judge Campbell M. Lucas is expected to affect the state's 82,000 physically and mentally disabled youngsters.

About 4,000 of those are not getting any education because their parents can't afford the special schooling.

Amador honor roll

PLEASANTON — The following Class of 1980 students at Amador Valley High School achieved the Honor Roll for the second semester.

To be named to this list a student must achieve a grade point average of 3.5, B-plus or better.

Curtis festival

Veteran music teacher Don Curtis will present his fourth annual music festival at Curtis Music's main studio Sunday, July 17 from 2 to 4 p.m.

The public is invited to hear students using the new Suzuki music method at the concert, where musicians aged three through adult will play by note, chord and ear.

The summer festival will include a new non-judging category, along with categories open to students who will be rated for good to outstanding performances.

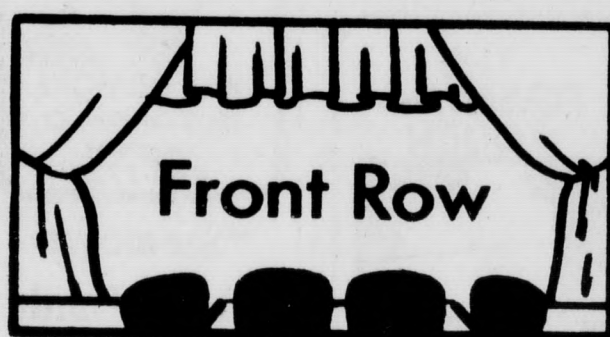

The Livermore studio is located at 2184 First Street.

For more information on the festival or for professional instruction in the art of music and music performance, call 443-3969 or 443-3919.

Festival '77

Committee members are busily getting Festival '77, a Livermore Cultural Arts Council annual event, underway for September. Everyone in the community is being called on to participate, from photography buffs to entertainers to craftspeople. Fundraiser Sam Spataro is looking for donations towards the Festival's programs; art show chairperson Bobbie Baird wants artworks and performing arts organizers Polly Grover and Jim Heiner are spotting talent (pictured left to right). Artist Becky Homan keeps busy finishing a sculpture at a recent brain-storming session.

I went away from "New York, New York" remembering only one thing: Robert De Niro's acting.

He plays a musician who is wrapped up in his music, a temperamental artist who has little time to express his emotions except through his tenor saxophone. He can be very tender at times with his wife, Liza Minnelli, but basically he is on the male chauvinist pig trip of the 1940's, which is to say he hides his feelings of weakness and vulnerability behind the macho role.

The only scene where he finally lets it all out is in the hospital room when Minnelli asks him if he wants to see his baby son. It's the only time in the movie he cries instead of shouts when something is painful to him. We finally see he can't handle anything more than his horn, his dedication to jazz, and his ambition for a comfortable life style.

Minnelli was supposed to be the third note in the music-success-woman triad that made up his "major chord," but it's the one where he fails. He can blow a mean horn, but he can't find the right notes for his feelings. It brings up the old question of whether the consummate artist is dedicated to art or likes to escape from people. It's something to think about.

Director Martin Scorsese has done an interesting thing. "New York" is supposed to be a musical. It has plenty of music, both real jazz by black musicians and the white swing tunes sung by Minnelli.

But like "Cabaret," it's a musical with a serious point and style. As a result, it comes out as a satire on the typical 1940's musical comedy. There's the same plot: boy meets girl, boy gets girl, both strive for success, she makes it, he's a little behind, they divorce.

But there is no happy ending here. The "get together" scene at the end is realistic. Minnelli is finally independent and realizes that De Niro just ain't a human being. And director Scorsese socks the point home with a brooding darkness in some of the evening scenes, to complement the brooding darkness of De Niro's face and soul. It's all reminiscent of 1940's "film noir" movies like "Lady from Shanghai," where there is a different kind of betrayal, a physical one, but not any less dark and destructive than De Niro's self-betrayal.

The movie's nostalgia has a social point. The film shows how musicians were among the first to get together across the color line. De Niro sits in with blacks in Harlem, plays the real jazz, not the white imitation swing, and in the closing scenes he hires black friends into his predominantly white jazz club.

You want to know about Minnelli? I don't like square music of the Minnelli-Streisand-Sinatra genre, so I could care less about her singing, though it's a good voice. Her acting's okay, though she's not in the league with De Niro and judging by press interviews, she knows it. But she's okay and who else would you cast in a musical about the 1940's, especially when, with the "Frances Langford hair bun," she looks just like her momma did, singing and dancing in the 1940's. That ought to be worth a coupla million at the box office.

Jazz variety at Concord

When it comes to presenting live jazz, there are few places Monterey and Newport included — that do it as well as Concord does.

The upcoming ninth summer festival at the Concord Pavilion proves that point. It's something that both the audience and the musicians look forward to. "At Newport," complained jazz artist Jake Hanna recently, "we have to play in a ball park, not set up for music at all, but to pack in as many bodies as possible."

"The Concord Pavilion," he added, "is the only place I've played where the actual concept from the first was to build for sound."

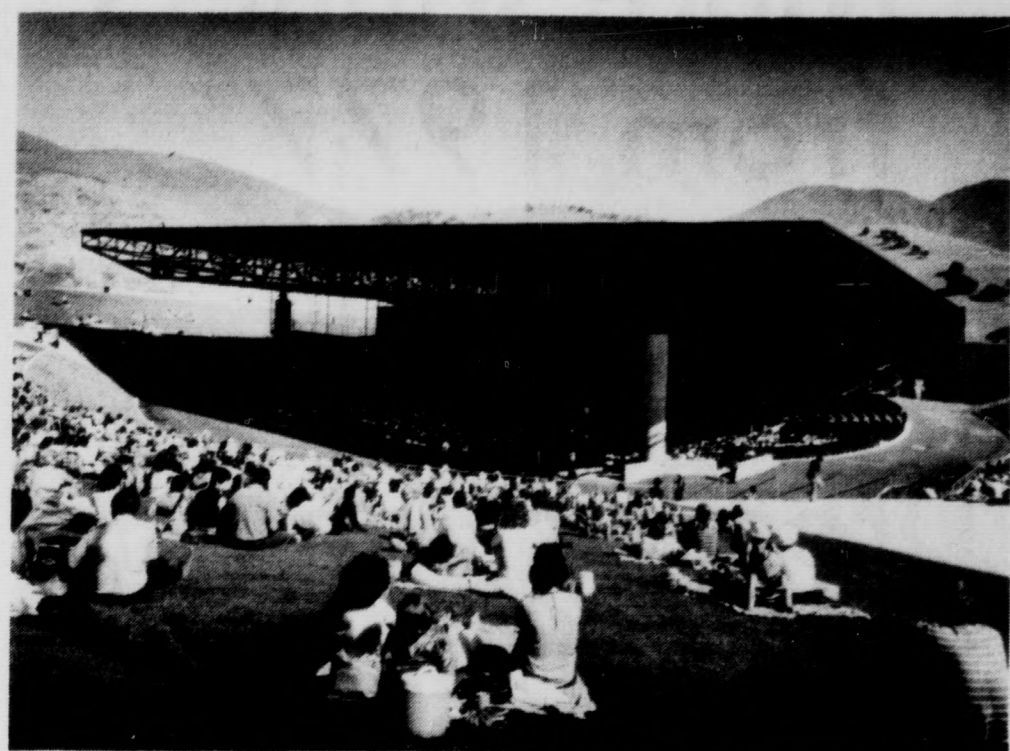

And sounds are THE thing when music fans talk about Concord jazz.

It can be said, and rightfully so, that the Concord brand of jazz is not experimental or avant-garde — the kind that can be heard in small San Francisco clubs like Keystone Korner or even the Great American Music Hall.

Respected jazz artists like McCoy Tyner, Ornette Coleman or Cecil Taylor are largely unknown to the listening public even today. They are artists of the highest calibre, but their music is complex and really requires the intimacy of a smaller club.

Promoters of the Pavilion festival know the importance of the words of the "terrible hype" of rock Carl Jefferson, president of the Concord Jazz Festival: "We're dealing with mass audiences of up to 8500 people."

And crowds like that, he maintains "shouldn't have to exercise their brain to know what's going on." So, he's lined up popular music stars, names that draw the massive crowds that Concord can hold. "We've put on nearly every jazz musician of major talent import that you can think of," Jefferson added. And as a result, he said, "there's no question that jazz emanating from Concord is going world-wide" and having a major influence on the international music scene.

"Jazz is timeless," Jefferson said. And with all the "terrible hype" of rock going around these days, he added, "we felt out kids and culture were being denied musical experiences."

The Concord people, to that problem, have set up a festival that promises to be a good one. All the ingredients are there especially the big names.

The Dave Frishberg Five, Rosemary Clooney with the Jake Hanna Quintet and Ramsey Lewis take over the Pavilion Friday, June 22.

Next, vibes artist Cal Tjader, the Concord All-Stars and the Toshiko Akiyoshi-Lew Tabackin Big Band hit the stage Saturday, July 23.

One of the most promising shows appears to be Friday, July 29 with Freddie Hubbard and highly-praised jazz singer Carmen McRae, appearing with the Bill Berry Big Band.

On Saturday, July 30, the Harold Land-Blue Mitchell Quintet, Kenny Burrell, and Frank Capp, Nat Pierce, and Ernie Andrews with Juggernaut will perform at the Pavilion.

Soprano Summit, the Ross Tompkins Quartet and the Milt Jackson All-Stars play Friday, August 5. And one of the other super big-name shows is closing night, Saturday, August 6, when the New George Barnes Quartet, the LA Four and Sergio Mendes and Brasil '77 take the Concord stage.

All shows start at 8 p.m., and tickets range from $5 to $7.50 for reserved seating to $4 on the lawn for adults and $3 for students. There's even season tickets, ranging from $40 to $23 for the six shows.

They've planned it well, this Concord festival. And with all those ingredients, it can't help but be a success.

Gallery celebrates birthday

It took years for the Livermore Art Association to set enough money aside for a gallery, but the organization finally managed it in 1974 — and this weekend heralds the gallery's third anniversary.

To help mark the occasion, gallery members will provide art-in-action demonstrations under the trees surrounding the Carnegie Building, which today houses the popular gallery.

Among the artists will be Marilyn Calhoun, one of the gallery's founders. With the help of other artists, Ms. Calhoun did exhaustive research on other galleries in Modesto, San Jose, San Francisco and Oakland, compiling designs.

Architect Bobbie Baird helped refurbish the Carnegie Building, using the old library's small amount of space effectively by converting bookshelves to flats that now hold portfolios.

Don Larsen, Brian McFann and Howard Tunison provided much of the manual labor.

The gallery, which also serves as a clearing house for information on art courses and Valley events, is co-directed by Edna Tunison and Carolyn Ramsey.

Open daily from 11:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. (except Monday and Tuesday), the gallery is free to the public and guided tours and demonstrations are available.

Cal High drama

Linus, played by Donald Cram, strikes a characteristic pose in the popular musical "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown," to be staged by the California High School Fine Arts drama and musical summer classes. The presentation will be held Friday and Saturday, July 19 and 20 at 7:30 p.m. in the Cal High auditorium. Ticket prices are $1 for adults and 75 cents for kids, with a special group family admission of $2. The school is located at 9870 Broadmoor, San Ramon.

Fender is Fair's biggest draw

Drawing power of the professional stage shows at the Alameda County Fair was never so dramatically shown as during the past two weeks.

With more than ample purse strings at hand, Fair talent hunters went after the best available acts.

How the various "star" and supporting acts, and emcees, are selected is a story in itself. Suffice to say, the Fair board's entertainment committee, chaired by Dick McCarthy of Oakland, along with Ed Hennessy, entertainment director, and Lee Hall, Fair Association manager, make the final selections.

The aim is to select a balanced lineup that will have some appeal to everyone attending the Fair.

Having seen five of the shows over the two-week period, we have our own favorites. But the biggest "draw" was unquestionably Freddie Fender on Tuesday and Wednesday, July 5 and 6. Fender drew capacity audiences (3,000 seating capacity in the Amphitheatre) for all four shows.

Second best draws were guitarist-singer Jose Feliciano (June 29, 30), and comedian John Byner (July 7, 8).

All of the supporting acts were top notch, particularly the Elkin Sisters and their "sophisticated Africans," Jerry Murad's Harmonicats, and emcee Kenny Davis.

The Elkin Sisters were scheduled for two nights but volunteered to perform two additional nights, at no cost, as they were between engagements. They'll be appearing at the Sonoma County Fair in Santa Rosa which is now underway.

About the only act we'd pass on for next year would be Howard Hardin, who contributed a few stale and

"blue" jokes before the Trenier performances July 3 and 4.

The Maytag washer repairman is coming to town July 22-23 and 29-30 to star in "Never Too Late."

That would be Jesse White, one of the busiest and most versatile actors in films, television and the legitimate stage.

White is perhaps best known as the comedic male nurse in "Harvey," in which he starred on Broadway for four years before repeating the role in the film version with Jimmy Stewart.

Performances are scheduled for the Chabot College auditorium in Hayward. Tickets may be obtained by contacting the Pleasanton Recreation Department or the Chabot College trailer at Granada High School in Livermore. Gold card holders will be admitted free.

In the Trib

The Oakland Tribune has a long and distinguished career in "family newspapering" for the East Bay. In recent years — ever since the death of Joseph Knowland Sr. in fact — the paper's fortunes have declined, and its leadership has been lost in a confusion of new and old ideas in an emerging metropolis.

The swing in population, in retail advertising and in newspapering has been to suburbia in the last decade or so. The Times is pleased to be part of that new force in the print media.

But we do not mark our own advance on the bones of the Trib. Their goals and their responsibilities must always differ from our own, and from the several strong suburban publications which serve these two counties.

We cannot serve Oakland. Neither can we be the strong East Bay voice needed to balance San Francisco's political and publishing ambitions. Without such a voice, all of the East Bay must suffer.

We welcome new leadership for the Tribune. With the challenge that confronts them, and us, nothing short of a total commitment to our people and to the press will do.

Life begins at

Senator Sam Hayakawa advises his constituents that "life begins at 65." He should know.

At 70 young years and "the oldest freshman in the United States Senate," S.I. Hayakawa speaks eloquently for the rights and opportunities of those who must pass from one of life's chapters to another, often because they are offered no choice.

The senator thinks there should be such a choice, but he believes even more strongly that opportunity — at 17 or 70 — rests largely with the individual. That is why Hayakawa recently voted against legislation that would have "locked in" senior members of the Congress. Our junior senator believes that no man or woman is entitled to a lock on life, or on a job; we are all competing for the next move up.

Retirement, says the man who left his job as university president in order to run for the United States Senate, "means only that you are freed from one job so that you can go on to something else." And if he is compelled to retire from the senate after one or two terms? "I'm already looking forward to other things I want to do."

That kind of independent thinking won't score many points with the bleeding-heart politicians who are determined to save senior citizens, and other cripples; but Senator Sam does offer an example for a great many Americans, who wonder what's beyond 60.

Blackout season

Do you have your own back-up plan ready for the day the power goes off?

There has been talk of "rolling blackouts" ever since the first Arab embargo on oil shipments to this country. That talk has been heightened this year with a continuing drought that seriously erodes our domestic power — production capabilities.

It is possible, just possible, that California will survive the summer of '77 without the need for any such power cutoffs, particularly in residential areas. "There is enough electricity, but there is no reserve," a report from University of California at Davis warns. UC engineers are trying to apprise the public of California's power picture, and give us a few leads on what to do should such blackouts be unavoidable, even for a few hours.

Major businesses and industries are already pledged to cut back on their power use on telephone signal from PG&E. These actions would be in advance of the mandatory cutbacks most major power consumers would face, when things get really bad.

Home owners should be prepared to turn off stoves, driers, air conditioners and other high-consumption appliances; and then turn them back on one-at-a-time when the blackout is over, in order to avoid another overload.

More important, the power you conserve right now could be energy stored against those critical days ... when summer temperatures soar and air conditioning systems drain the available power source.

Bay Area residents proved they could learn to live with less water, and without serious harm to our lifestyle. We must tackle any power shortage with the same courage, and the same good sense.

One proud student

Editor, The Times:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the Murray School District for awarding me the Victor Carruth Music Scholarship.

I feel both proud and humble at the same time. Proud that a lot of hard work on my part has given me the chance to attend the La Honda Summer Music Camp; to be able to learn something new in music each day by top instructors; and to be with other kids who appreciate and love music as I do.

I am also very humble in the knowledge that without the help and support of my family, Jerry Lapinski (my music teacher and friend at Wells Intermediate School), Fred Shockley (Oakland "Big Band" leader) who has given me confidence, encouragement and opportunities, and my many friends too numerous to name I would never have this award.

But above all, I thank God for letting people care about people who care.

Sites, but no kids

The word out of Sacramento is that the next target of California's watchdog Little Hoover Commission will be school districts that purchase land for school sites then fail to build the schools.

At least two Valley districts would fall in this category, Murray and San Ramon, while a third, Pleasanton, previously took steps to separate itself from land in the Fairlands area previously earmarked for a school site.

Pleasanton and Amador, in fact, own or still have options on nine prospective school sites.

But five, all elementary sites, are under option terms and would not come under the Hoover Commission purview.

The other four could, though the Amador and Pleasanton districts are not drawing any monetary penalties for holding them as the Murray district is with two of their sites.

San Ramon is in the process of selling two school sites, the elementary section of the Tibros site and Sycamore, and it is not known if they are drawing any penalties on these or other sites.

The Little Hoover Commission has pinpointed 170 school districts in the state who have removed an aggregate of 12,500 acres from the property tax rolls, but have not built the 835 schools planned for those sites.

The commission has considered several proposals to remedy this erosion of the tax base.

One proposal is a build-or-sell incentive whereby state education funds totaling the full value of the property would be withheld if the district failed to use the land for the stated purpose for a given number of years.

Murray's travails in this area are an example of the maze a school district can become trapped in.

Like so many other California public school districts, Murray found itself growing faster than it could build schools in the early 60s.

And, like the sad situation of the Hayward district, the population bomb fizzled. In its place came declining enrollment and a failure to realize that the "boom times" were over—at least for this decade.

Murray is paying penalties on two sites, including the 27-acre Dolan intermediate site in Silvergate.

The district also has a Stoneson school site on the Pleasanton side of Highway 580 and property off of Dublin Boulevard, near Foremost, that has been earmarked for district headquarters.

Then there's the former Dublin School pool on Vomic Road, a white elephant in the truest sense of the term, but a lesser headache when compared with Murray's other no-build sites.

The Pleasanton district still holds options on five potential school sites: McKay, off of Hopyard Road and near Valley Trails, originally planned for grades 6-8; Black Avenue, planned for grades K-3; Woodthrus Road, planned for K-5 and located near the Pleasanton Sports Park; the much-debated Del Prado or Willowest site, for K-5, and a site on Hansen Drive.

The districts own four sites, two being located on opposite sides of Krelln Road in Vintage Hills. One is tabbed for a K-5 school and the other, 20 acres, for an intermediate school. A 10-acre K-5 site is located in Mission Park and a high school site, the only one in the Amador district, takes up 40 acres on Sycamore Road.

Whether any one of the latter, owned sites, will be built upon in the foreseeable future is highly debatable.

There is little question about Murray's plight. The Dublin-based K-8 district, in actuality, may find itself faced with closing a school within two years.

In the meantime, it draws penalties on two sites.

All the while, San Ramon searches for ways to house a burgeoning enrollment.

Even the watchdog Little Hoover Commission could commiserate with the diverse problems of the latter two Valley districts.

Pipeline fraud

Editor, The Times:

After attending the LAVWMA Meeting on July 7 ... I have concluded there is much to be said for the whole dismal affair. For starters, the two women on the LAVWMA Board lit up in defiance of no smoking signs about the place ... two women reporters, an engineer and a finance expert who puffed continually on a big black cigar. Soon the entire auditorium was full of sickening second hand tobacco smoke and not a word was said about it for the entire meeting. This board is hell bent to do what it wants when it wants and the public be damned.

Robert Philcox had somehow surrendered the gavel to Mr. Turner who chaired the meeting and it takes only one or two sessions of such affairs to find out why the public stays away in droves. One of the last items of discussion related to the public information forum to take place at the Granada School in Livermore at 8 p.m. on July 13. Mr. Harding of the C2HM Hill Company asked if the board would authorize him to appear as one of the panelists. The board declined saying that it ... had no interest in more such public information sessions.

This of course makes one wonder ... some 74% of the public to this day has no notion of what the sewer pipe issue is all about. All one has to do to find out why is to attend a couple of such meetings. It is almost as though the agenda are designed to reveal as little as possible and then deliberately fail to report, we have what amounts to a secret society spending millions of taxpayer money for who knows what.

How this LAVWMA Board can sit there pretending to represent the public interest ... is beyond my comprehension. This worthless pipeline to the bay, in my judgement, represents a breach of trust and a fraud ... The trouble is that it will take several years for the victims to realize how truthfully I speak.

Pipeline foe

Editor, The Times:

If reason can prevail over the biased statements of those who promote the construction of the $38 million dollar pipeline, there are ten reasons why it should not be built.

Denying the existence of a drought in California, several bay area communities get rid of vast quantities of reclaimed water by dumping it into the Bay ... each community has a duty to conserve its own reclaimed water by means of reservoirs.

The development of the tri-valley area must eventually accommodate the needs of extensive industry and that means water. A reservoir of reclaimed water can be more reliable than rainfall as a future source. ...

Years ago reclaimed water conservation by means of reservoir ... as considered a viable alternative ... Now shouldn't Doolan Canyon or any other canyon be reconsidered as a possible site for a dam?

If the pipeline is built, residents ... will be obligated to payments of $3,000,000 yearly ... for the foreseeable future. This will make water bills soar and drive residents out of the area.

The voters of Dublin, Livermore and Pleasanton have already turned down the pipeline in the November 1976 referendum. The anti-democratic move of LAVWMA, et al, to proceed with it anyway is an affront to all who believe in the will of the people.

There seems to be a grand strategy by those who promote the pipeline idea — to get rid of millions of gallons of expensive high quality reclaimed water in order to perpetuate the scarcity of water ...

Many other far sighted progressive communities are using reclaimed water for a myriad of uses including fish farming, fire fighting, municipal, agriculture, and industry.

Pleasanton is fortunate in having two means of using reclaimed water. 1. A beautiful arroyo cutting through the town which could be turned into a park ... 2. An empty quarry on its border is a made-to-order receptacle for storing a vast quantity of this water.

The processing of sewage is costly, as the mayor of Pleasanton admits, then why dispose of it into the bay? Just put a low price on it and watch farmers go for it.

It appears that it is a case of "Pipeline For Pipeline's Sake" ...

Attend a debate on the pipeline on July 13, — 8 p.m. at the Little Theater, Granada High School, 400 Wall Street, Livermore.

Cecil Alberts,

FOUND the town

Of all life's occasions, I am convinced breakfast is among the most fulfilling. It isn't the two eggs. Not, heaven forbid, the burned toast. Not even when smothered under her delicious boysenberry jam.

No, it is the experience of breakfast that turns me on. Have a good breakfast experience, and the world is yours for the day. Have a bum one, and it's Watch-out - Charlie.

I was enjoying one of the former, sharing bits of toast with the Dachshund, when our reverie was disrupted by a voice from the far side of the table. "Please don't get bread crumbs all over the floor," she advises us, "I just had the floors done."

It is of such things as "getting the floors done" that the real world is made, I suppose. But when a man has his toast, his morning paper and his faithful dog at this side, the price of a clean floor is not what it's all about.

"Do you plan to take the dog to the vet today?" she asks. "She's been dragging herself around all week. I just don't know what can be done for her though, at her age ..."

Age? What has age got to do with one's well-being? On such a day as this, veterinarians and orthopedic surgeons are the farthest things from our mind.

"I really think the two of you go through the same sick cycles," she says. "When you're feeling good, so's the dog, but when you're down, the dog looks absolutely terrible."

True. But it is not a subject we care to discuss.

"Have you been reading this series in the Chronicle?" she asks. "Written by a veterinarian who finds that many of the ills of people are picked up by their dogs, and vice versa. That sounds alarmingly close to home."

Some vet with a sense of humor, and a slow practice. Gets this idea for a book. Now running in serial form in the morning Chron. Yes, I was aware of it. But I didn't think it worthy of comment.

"This is really something!" she announces, continuing to share her newspaper fluff with the rest of us. "This writer says many a human's hangups are no more than an extension of the dog's psychosis. Imagine that!"

No, I cannot imagine it. Silly stuff. People are people and dogs are dogs. Never the twain shall meet.

At that point a warm nudge against my right leg reminds me of a hungry friend, and I toss down another small bit of toast, with boysenberry jam.

I am looking down at those soulful eyes, the companion who is 17 - going - on - 84. Silver threads among the brown. Ah yes, and how is your bad back today, old friend?

A master can be concerned for his beast without bowing to all that psychosis nonsense. Dachshund is my property, my responsibility. As a sensitive homo sapien I am bound to respond to her daily needs.

"Sometimes the veterinarian cures the pet by first curing the owner," she announces, determined to share that blessed article with the household. "But he says many owners resist that approach."

Resist? I would hope so. A man needs no animal doctor to start sizing him up ... "take two of these pills every day, one for the dog, one for you." I imagine he also charges double the fee that way.

There was this case, while back, where rich old lady died leaving no close kin. But she did leave two million bucks to her cat! "Give my beloved Foofoo all the comforts of life that two million dollars can buy," she ordered in her will. Couple of distant nephews contested that legacy. Trying to claim the old gal was nuts.

"Your honor, we respectfully submit that any woman who would leave two million dollars to her cat must have been unbalanced." The judge gave the nephews a token, but assigned bulk of old gal's estate to Foofoo. Nasty business.

"If you aren't planning to take the dog to the vet today, then maybe you could go shopping with me. We need almost everything in the food department," she announces.

Yes. And low on dog food too, I am informed. Dachshund has been living on scraps of toast and other assorted tosses from loving master. Dachshund deserves better, considering her age, and everything.

"I wouldn't want you to lift anything heavy," she says, laying out the day's shopping tour. "You've been ouchy every since you carried in that case of boysenberries for me last week. I wish you would be more careful."

A man is not made to be a beast of burden. More so when he's put on a year or three. Vertebrate have a life span of their own, apparently. First signs of happy maturation. The kind of thing a man might forget, of a lovely morning, when life is spread like boysenberry jam atop a slice of toast.

"Please don't throw food on my clean floor," she requests, again. "Why don't you and the dog finish your breakfast and your morning paper out on the patio?"

Good idea. I wonder if Dachshund is through with the sports page?

Ken Maddy

Now that Assemblyman Ken Maddy has put his act together for a serious gubernatorial bid the question is whether the Republicans will be astute enough to unite for the purpose of securing his nomination next June?

For, in the opinion of many Capitol observers Maddy is the one, among the current potential Republican candidates, with the best chance of beating incumbent Governor Jerry Brown.

This notion is not merely that Maddy is unquestionably the best liked of those being mentioned. On the congeniality scale the warm and friendly Maddy outdistances the others by a country mile. More than that he is respected for his ability and sincerity and for keeping his word. Undoubtedly it was these qualities which influenced Speaker Leo McCarthy to name him a committee chairman in the house where Democrats, being strongly in control, keep most of the goodies to themselves.

Neither is it that the personable Maddy at 43 is both young and handsome and bound to come across good in television appearances. The woods are full of nice guys who are good looking and young. As Leo Durocher was quick to say, nice guys don't win ball games.

What is convincing about Maddy as a Republican gubernatorial candidate is his demonstrated ability to win Democratic votes. His district is in the heart of the San Joaquin Valley where Democrats outnumber Republicans better than two to one.

Despite that, Maddy outran 8 Democrats, including two former Assemblymen, as well as two other Republicans and two independents, in his first race for the Assembly in 1970. He has since been re-elected three times, twice in a district enlarged by reapportionment.

The key to these successes would seem to be Maddy's political complexion. While some Republicans view him as moderate, the Democrats see him as a conservative. And conservative Democrats have traditionally been elected in the Fresno area. Leaving aside labels, Maddy's legislative record indicates a middle of the road attitude which is the type who generally win in statewide elections.

Declaring after his last Assembly victory that he would seek other office next time around, he first talked of running for attorney general. But a groundswell of support amongst farmers around the state, brought on by Maddy's vigorous stand against the Farm Labor initiative in 1976, started him thinking about the No. 1 job. When the agricultural interest dramatically showed their support was more than talk by putting up hard cash to back him, Maddy was hooked.

His immediate hurdle, which many believe will be his biggest, is the winning of the GOP nomination. Now possessing, with his farm bloc, the only solid corps of support of any of the candidates so far, Maddy may well be on the road to victory. Not that the farmers alone will elect him but, reviewing past elections, nobody seems to win in California without it.

Maddy is the only northern California Republican in the running. The others are San Diego Mayor Pete Wilson, Orange County State Senator John V. Briggs, and Attorney General Evelle J. Younger and Police Chief Ed Davis, both of Los Angeles.

Assuming that each of the candidates receives half of the votes of his home base with the outsiders dividing equally the balance and all running fairly even in the remaining five southern counties, Maddy comes out of the south trailing. But giving Maddy the same home boy edge over the rest throughout the San Joaquin Valley would narrow the gap.

On that analysis the battle may be fought in the Bay Area where a northern and moderate like Maddy would seem to have a distinct advantage over the others.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: Both my husband and I work at full-time jobs and have for a number of years. The extra income has provided us a comfortable life (we have no children), but it has placed a double burden on me. My husband absolutely refuses to help in any way around the house, with the shopping, or even making incidental telephone calls about wrong bills or late deliveries. Frankly, I'm worn out. My job is as demanding as his and I can't see any reason he can't help. Can you?

—H.W.

DEAR H.W.: No. It sounds like your mate is one of those old-time chauvinists who believes that helping with the housework is undignified for a man. You are quite right that he should be of assistance — exchanging your working for his helping. Probably your husband's mother stayed at home and picked up after her family. That's obviously not the situation in your home and you should let him know it in no uncertain terms. Your energies are being expended to contribute to income and there should be a sharing of responsibility as well.

Two thoughts come to mind: Threaten to quit your job so you can stay home and attend to the housework, or hire a part-time housekeeper. The latter won't free you of all chores but should take some of the load from you. If your husband balks, lay it on the line and tell him you can't handle it alone. He might be surprised to discover he enjoys certain aspects of housework or shopping. Many men do.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My husband and I divorced two years ago amicably. He came to the house quite often under liberal child visitation rights and he and our 9-year-old son got on famously. About six months ago, my ex took a job in a distant state and we haven't heard from him since. It has been particularly hard on the boy, and he now has me worried. He seldom sees any of his friends as he did before, doesn't want to go to school and is extremely dependent. Where do I turn? —G.K.

DEAR G.K.: Unfortunately, absence doesn't always make the heart grow fonder — or so it would seem in the case with your ex-husband's attitude toward your son. His thoughtlessness can be extremely harmful to the boy.

The immediate need is to contact your ex and let him know how his indifference has affected his son. Divorce is difficult enough for a child to comprehend. When one of the parents, especially one with whom he had a close relationship, suddenly disappears from the scene, it can be doubly upsetting.

Stress to your ex that a phone call, letter or, preferably, a short visit would reaffirm the boy's faith in himself — and in his father. Unless the boy is made to realize soon that the breakup of your marriage and the departure of his father were in no way his doing (children often blame themselves when their parents divorce) he may require professional assistance to deal with emotional distress.

In the meantime, talk to the school guidance counselor, contact some group, such as the Police Athletic League that can provide substitute father figures, or ask a male acquaintance to befriend the boy. At his age, the need for male companionship is important.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "HOW DOES THE ANCHOR HOLD THE SHIP?"

KATHI HELM
UPLAND, CA

A simple cement-can anchor can keep a fisherman's rowboat from drifting in a smooth lake or stream. But large ships must use anchors made of iron or steel.

The anchors of early-day sailing ships had flukes, or "hooks," on curved arms at the end of a shank. When the anchor was dropped into the water, a stock, or crossarm, near the top of the anchor prevented it from laying flat and made sure that one of the flukes would dig into the mud and keep the ship from dragging the anchor along the bottom.

Most anchors used today are stockless anchors. The arm of the stockless anchor pivots, or turns, so that both flukes catch in the mud to hold the ship in place.

Most large ships carry two or more heavy anchors. These anchors must be raised by hauling machines called windlasses.

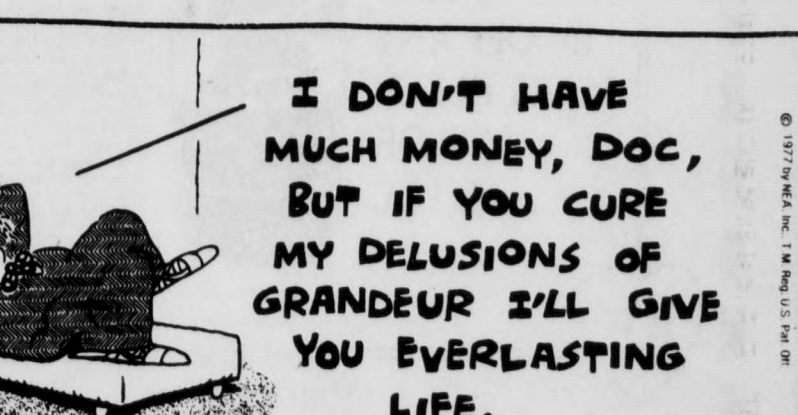

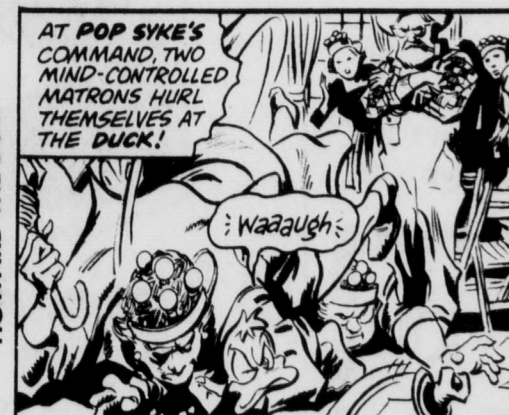

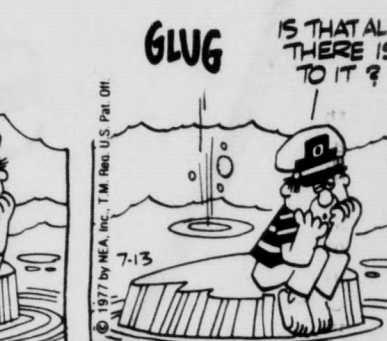

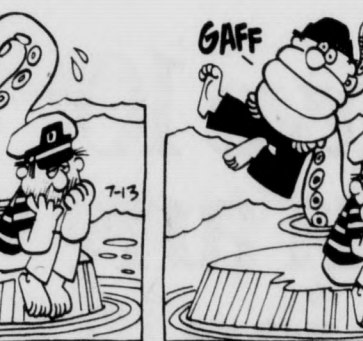

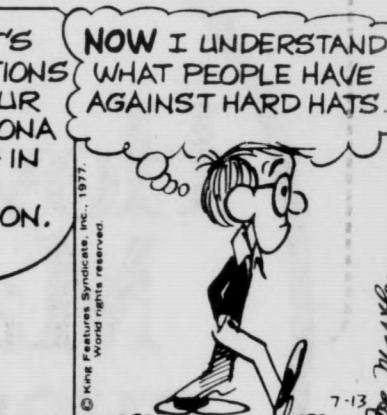

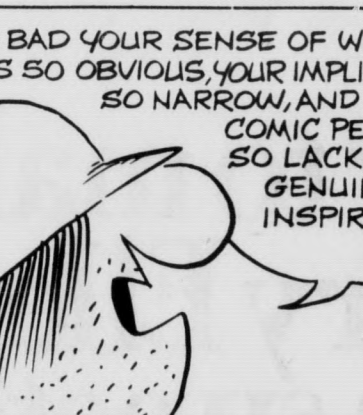

When a ship is under way, the anchors are pulled tight against openings in the bow called hawsepipes.

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — Will you please write about hardening of the arteries? Every time my husband is in the hospital or in bed for a few days he gets confused, doesn't know where he is or what he does or says. It's awful.

He is 74 years old and has been sick for a long time with several different things. I would like to know all I can about the confused way he gets. You can't reason with him then, and he thinks he's not at home when he is.

DEAR READER — This is a very common condition in our society. Whenever the brain cells are not functioning properly you may have confusion. One can see this when the brain cells are affected by medicine or drugs, as may occur even with excess alcohol.

Fatty deposits in the arteries build up and interfere with the normal blood flow to brain cells. This is the same disease that occurs in arteries elsewhere in the body. This may cause significant changes in personality, confusion and changes in behavior. The artery disease really decreases the oxygen supply to sensitive brain cells.

There are studies being done on how to cope with these conditions but I must say there is very little that can be done at present. It is probably important to spend time trying to help the person relate to reality. Be firm in saying what the facts really are. In other words insist that he is home when his mind is playing tricks on him and he thinks he is not. Enforce the idea that a visitor is not some imagined person from the past. These people have a hard enough time determining what is correct without reinforcing their fantasies.

Good medical care helps. Any anemia may decrease the ability to supply oxygen to the brain and make matters worse. Careful attention to nutrition and providing as normal an environment as possible is about the best that can be done.

The best approach is to prevent these problems in so far as possible. That means preventing atherosclerosis, the fatty-cholesterol deposits. Small strokes may also cause this condition and can best be prevented by controlling high blood pressure, avoiding obesity, eating a low-fat low-cholesterol diet, avoiding cigarettes and having a sensible exercise program.

Full pay for full day's work

MARTINEZ — Full-time supervisors should be paid full-time salaries, said Supervisor Eric Hasseltine, Danville, in making a pitch for higher wages Tuesday.

He asked fellow supervisors to form a "blue-ribbon" committee to determine whether supervisors should be on the job full-time and be paid accordingly.

Hasseltine said the $16,000 a year paid each member of the Board of Supervisors isn't enough.

And while fellow supervisors and the county Grand Jury all agree, other board members tried to put the damper on Hasseltine's suggestion for higher wages.

Hasseltine explained that he's currently trying to support his family on the $16,000 a year supervisors' salary after losing his $28,000 a year job as an engineer because of his political office.

He explained that the Sandia Corp. "gave me the choice between being an engineer or a politician."

"I may have to send my wife to work," Hasseltine said.

He said he spends 80 hours a week working on county business and simply doesn't have the time to devote to other business endeavors.

The county Grand Jury last week recommended that county supervisors be on the job full time and be paid higher wages.

With that impetus, Hasseltine said the time has come for board members to decide whether the job should be full time, part-time or "an honorary position."

Under state law, county supervisors can set their own salaries.

The last attempt at raising salaries by the board met with considerable controversy when, in 1972 salaries were raised by the board and then ordered lowered by voters following an initiative election.

Since then, supervisors have gotten only cost of living increases.

Hasseltine suggested the proposed blue ribbon committee examine salaries paid other county boards of supervisors and report back within a month.

But fellow board members refused to set up the committee without the concurrence of Chairman Warren Boggess, Concord, who was vacationing this week.

"We have to decide if this is a full-time job and we're to work at it, or it's part-time or if it's just an honorary position where we just show up on Tuesdays for the votes," Hasseltine said.

Livermore plan: Staley holds key on park fund use

LIVERMORE — Councilman John Staley, off on a trip to Europe, is the last hope to keep the city from dipping into the parkland acquisition fund.

When Staley returns, he may tip the current 2-2 balance of votes over whether or not to take some $100,000 from that fund to pay for several new city employees.

Last month, the council resigned itself to taking money from a fund earmarked to buy parkland rather than deny several badly needed new positions on the city staff.

Then two weeks ago, councilman Glen Dahlbacka noticed about $100,000 had been added to preliminary estimates of the city's 1977-78 income. Dahlbacka suggested using the new money instead — but he couldn't make a formal motion to that effect because he had abstained from the original decision.

Councilman Dale Turner was behind Dahlbacka at Monday night's council meeting. But Turner couldn't introduce a motion to change the original action either, since he had voted against it in the first place.

Marshall Kamena and Mayor Helen Tirsell declined to change their original positions.

The only hope for the park fund now hinges on Staley, who voted for the original decision and who not only can make the motion to keep hands off the park fund, but also holds the swing vote.

Aside from that controversy, council members voted unanimously to accept the budget prepared for them by city staff and worked over for the past several months.

At the last minute, Councilman Kamena suggested hiring an additional person for the police department. He said he hoped it would be a patrolman but would leave the final decision up to Police Chief Ron Lindgren.

Kamena won immediate agreement from the rest of the council. The city will also be adding a clerk typist in the building department (half time at $4,320 a year); an accounting technician in the finance department (half time at $5,370 a year; stenographer in the city attorney's office (increase to full-time, an additional $4,710 a year); a sixth police dispatcher ($11,292 a year); a firefighter ($14,407 a year); a personnel analyst (half time, $7,200) and a city engineer ($28,380.)

The only member of the public asking to speak on the $16.3 million operating budget was Ray Faltings of the American Taxpayers Union. He said he would like to see this become "more or less the last year of deficit spending" and remarked that cities should "not only break even but start to pay back some of the funds" poured into the budget by taxpayers.

Indian center may get new boss

LIVERMORE — A replacement for American Indian Center coordinator Jack Orr, who left last February, may be coming on board tomorrow.

Local Indian parents and anyone interested in the workings of the Title IV Parent Committee, sponsored by the Livermore Unified School District, are invited to a meeting at 7:30 p.m. Thursday. According to a notice mailed out by chairman Keith McCallister, "Hopefully, there will be information to be discussed concerning the appointment of our new coordinator as reviewing applicants is now being held."

The $50,000 a year program has been funded for its third year, according to McCallister. Designed to increase pride and achievement among the school district's 600 children of Native American background, the program includes native crafts, dancing, field trips and a library of specialized books.

The American Indian Center is located in a rented building next to the Eagles hall at 577 North Livermore Ave.

When Orr's departure was announced in the spring, Dr. Justin Bardellini, assistant superintendent of schools and head of the federally-funded Indian program, said he expected to have a new coordinator on the job by June.

Valley hypnotist is expert

PLEASANTON — Pete Watt, hypnotist, is dedicated to taking away the hocus-pocus image that has surrounded the art of hypnosis for centuries.

Watt, known professionally as Mr. Allen, began learning hypnosis techniques when he was 12 years old. After reading about the subject, studying under four master-level teachers and attending several private schools that taught courses in hypnosis, Watt is considered an expert in the field. He is registered as a professional hypnotist with the California Hypnotists Examining Council. After proving he knew laws regarding the practice of hypnosis, Watt was the first hypnotist to be given a license to practice in the City of Concord. He operates a training center there.

Watt lives in Pleasanton and has given lectures and demonstrations at local schools and community groups.

Watt said the "fixation" technique commonly heard and read about dates back 75 to 100 years.

"That's where the subject is required to stare at a fixed object anywhere from three minutes to three hours before going under."

He explained hypnotists practicing that way often tried to impose their wills and ideas on the subject. All that method did was build up resistance within the subject, Watt said.

The object of his updated technique is to train people how to hypnotize themselves, structure their own suggestions and apply where needed.

"This gives the person more privacy and they can hypnotize themselves when the time is convenient."

He said, like anything else, some people were more skilled at learning the technique of self-hypnosis than others.

"But once they learn to plant an image, thought or idea in their subconscious, then the subconscious takes over and takes necessary steps to make that image, thought or idea come about."

He reminded that the various levels of consciousness reached in hypnosis were a natural state of mind. People are in and out of those states day and night, he said. There is nothing mysterious about them, Watt declared.

"Roughly, the various levels are hypnodial, light, medium, somnambulistic, coma, sleep state. They overlap at times."

Putting a subject into a hypnotic state takes from three to 15 seconds using Watt's updated technique.

"We begin by using the 'tired eyes' method," he explained. "That signals the subconscious to take over. It's the same level you reach during a dull speech and have a hard time keeping awake. We don't know what the signal does to the brain, but from data received from a Sleep Center, we know 'tired eyes' provokes a signal."

"Tired eyes" are accomplished by promoting natural strain on the eyeballs. The hypnotist in charge has the subject move the eyeballs in a certain pattern. Four other reflexes follow. They are "eye-roll" (leaving only whites showing), lacrimation (tears), injection scleral (eyeballs and surrounding tissue turn red from vein enlargement) and reduced respiration rate. The tear and red-eye stages are the two signs that prove subject has reached a hypnotic state, Watt said.

People cannot be hypnotized unless they want to be nor will they accept suggestions that are contrary to their basic moral principles, Watt stated.

"And if any hypnotist says he can guarantee a cure for anything, run from them," Watt advised. "We can only plant suggestions, that's all."

He said hypnosis is not a substitute for medication or medical treatment but it can be an aid. Smoking, drinking and the like can be helped only if the subject's subconscious fully accepts the suggestion.

"Mostly it's a matter of helping the person build up will power and self-confidence through suggestion."

Watt contends hypnosis can be used as an aid to help in the fields of teaching, mental programs, medicine and related areas.

He said psychology, psychiatry, positive thinking, yoga, meditation, psycho-cybernetics and mind-control programs applied excerpts of hypnosis but did not take the techniques of hypnosis far enough.

"And hypnosis has absolutely no relation to things like reincarnation, mediums, predictions, psychics and the like."

Watt remarked that from what he had heard, the followers of Rev. Moon seemed to be under some sort of hypnotic trance.

"I've heard their eyes have a watery, glassy look. That could mean hypnosis. But even if they are, it should be pointed out that mind control cannot last unless the subject wants it too. After a while, a natural resistance sets up and the subject rebels."

Watt said if a hypnotist became ill and was unable to stay around to bring a subject out of a trance, the subject would come out of the trance naturally.

Fair slated for review

The Alameda County Fair Association Board of Directors will hold a special meeting Tuesday, July 19 to review the County Fair which closed Sunday.

Directors convene at 8 p.m. in the board room of the administration offices on Pleasanton Avenue in Pleasanton.

A finance committee meeting will precede the regular board meeting at 7 o'clock.

Tuesday's meeting will also serve as the annual organizational meeting. Current officers are Frank Castelletti, Castro Valley, president, and George Bayliss, Hayward, vice-presi-

Terms of the respective board members are also routinely voted upon at the organizational meeting.

Fair directors are expected to receive a preliminary report on crowd counts and general impressions of the various sections of the County Fair.

A full report is expected next month.

The Fair Association reported a grand total attendance for 15 days of 402,822. For the first time in Alameda County Fair history, the average daily parimutuel handle topped $1 million. The final wagering total for the '77 meet was $12,934,382, up 9.34 per cent from the previous record in '75 of $11,828,590.

Jail booking unit rejected

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — Less than five minutes of discussion ended the months long battle over construction of a new booking facility at the county's Santa Rita jail.

The proposed $400,000 project was unanimously "scuttled" by county supervisors yesterday.

The board had been torn for months over construction of the project.

While all five supervisors agreed with the county sheriff on the need to replace the dilapidated and outdated present booking building, they were torn over the massive expenditure for about 18 months of use.

The county's pre-trial center slated for construction in downtown Oakland will take some of the pressure off the Santa Rita facility. It will be ready in about three years, and the booking facility, if started immediately, would have been ready in 18 months.

"I'm not ready to spend $400,000 for a project that won't be ready for 18 months, then 18 months later won't be as heavily used because of the Oakland pre-trial facility," said supervisor Fred Cooper.

"Give me a motion to scuttle the thing," said board chairman Charles Santana, long an opponent of the proposed building.

Cooper had been offering the project lukewarm support for the past few months.

But pressure from taxpayers over the county's record $440.5 million budget, skyrocketing property tax bills, and complaints of too much jail related construction apparently brought the proposed project to a halt.

The board plans to raise and rebuild the entire 900-acre jail farm in the next few years. It has been roundly condemned by the sheriff, the board, grand juries and judges as antiquated and inhuman.

How to get clean wash in a drought.

1. Try to do full loads. It will take more planning, but it means no waste—and that's what conservation is all about.
2. Don't overload. Follow your machine's instructions. A few too many items and your machine can't agitate properly and clothes won't circulate enough to get clean.

Give your detergent some cleaning help.

1. Because your family may be wearing clothes longer, and because you may be washing full loads, those loads will tend to be dirtier. So your detergent will need extra cleaning power from bleach in every load. If you've never tried Clorox® Liquid Bleach or Clorox 2® All-Fabric Bleach, you will be pleased to find how effective they are on the dirt and stains in these tougher loads.

2. Make sure you add enough Clorox Liquid. Normal usage is 1 cup—follow package instructions for dirtier, full loads.

3. For Clorox 2 loads, again be sure to use enough. Normal usage is ½ cup—follow package instructions for dirtier, full loads.

One more thing.

No need to waste the water you do your wash in. Wash water can be used for flushing toilets, and final rinse water can be safely used to wash cars and pets.

Elbert, Pleasanton winners

It will be a battle of unbeaten teams when Fremont and Pleasanton tangle for the District 5 Babe Ruth all-stars 13-year-old championship at Amador Valley High School Saturday morning at 10 a.m.

Both teams took easy victories last night at Amador Valley. Pleasanton, behind the brilliant seven hit pitching of Chris Elbert, took a decisive 10-5 victory over Hayward American.

Fremont romped to an even easier 12-2 win over Livermore that only went five innings because the winning team was 10 runs ahead.

Elbert started things out right for Pleasanton with a home run in the first inning after two outs. He hit a Ron Moss pitch down the right field line that went all the way to the backstop and he scored easily.

The Valley team added four runs in the second inning, aided by two errors and a passed ball. Jim Belmer, Scott Donhvan and Mike Stovall each belted hits in the inning.

Pleasanton added two more runs in the third on consecutive singles by Greg Devune, Steve Sabo and Donhvan. Stovall then s smashed a base hit to right field, scoring Devune.

Hayward came back and scored twice in its half of the third. Doug Henry singled to open the inning and Todd Robinson doubled him home. Two more walks and an error brought in Robinson with the second run.

Hayward threatened to make a game of it in the fourth inning, scoring three more runs. After Bob Peterson popped out to Elbert Henry reached first on a walk but Robinson fanned for the second out. However Wade Sandoval walked, Matt Warren singled and Marshall Jones doubled but was thrown out attempting to reach third base to end the inning.

However, that was the last bit of glory for Hayward.

Pleasanton scored twice in the fifth inning and once in the sixth to conclude the scoring.

Elbert went the distance allowing four earned runs, walking four and striking out six batters. Moss, who received the loss, went the first four innings, and allowed eight hits and seven runs before being relieved by Sandoval in the fifth. Sandoval pitched the remainder of the game.

Donhvan led all hitters with three singles, two RBI and scored once. Stovall also had three singles and had one RBI. Belmer added two singles for Pleasanton.

Henry and Warren each had two hits for the losers.

In the Fremont-Livermore game Bob Goulard was a thorn in the side of Livermore all night. He threw a two-hitter and also belted a grand slam home run in the fifth inning. He had two other singles and five RBI.

Fremont jumped out to a 3-0 lead after its half of the third inning before Livermore could score its first run.

Kevin Trudeau led off the third for Livermore, grounding out to third. However, Bob Markowski walked, stole second, went to third on a passed ball and scored on a sacrifice fly by Larry Friel.

However, Fremont broke it wide open in the fourth stanza, scoring five times. The big blows were a double by Don Harmon and a triple by Ed Lazono. The winners added four more runs in the fifth on Goulard's grand slam.

Livermore scored its only other run in the bottom of the fourth. Steve Johnson walked, but a double play erased the scoring threat momentarily. However, Osher walked, stole second and scored on Jessie Velasquez's single.

Goulard, walked five

NEWARK — Breaks, those wonderful little pieces of baseball games you need to win, went in one direction last for the Swensen's Ice Cream Dodgers.

Their. The Dublin Little League champions scored four runs on wild pitches and benefited from the four-hit pitching of eleven-year-old Todd Thorson to blank the Niles - Centerville Oaks, 5-0, in semi-final play of District 57 Tournament of Champions.

The Dodgers will now face the San Ramon Pirates, who defeated the Fremont American Angels 1-0 last night, at Marshall School (Curtis Street in Fremont) Saturday at 1:00 for the District 57 championship.

Dublin scored single runs in the second and third innings and three runs — all on wild pitches — in the fifth to secure the win.

However, the 5-0 score is no indication of the difference between the two squads who played at Newark High School last night.

The Oaks outthit the Dodgers, 4-3, but left men in scoring position in every inning but the third and sixth in taking a hard defeat.

Dublin's biggest break came in the fifth inning as they were holding on to a dear 2-0 lead. After Thorson retired the first two batters in the inning, he surrendered a base hit to Eric Morgan and another single to Phil Johnson. Both runners moved to second and third when the throw from the outfield was wild.

That brought up cleanup hitter David Domeier, who also happened to be the losing pitcher. Domeier second inning, with Galli drawing a one-out walk to begin the rally. Page blooped a single to left off Domeier and both runners advanced on a wild pitch. Galli scored on another wild toss by Domeier to make it 1-0.

In the third inning, the smashed a hard grounder to shortstop Don Galli, who made a commendable stop going away from first. Although his throw to first was wide, first baseman Andy Lezcano made a sweeping tag to nip Domeier as he crossed the bag.

The controversial "out" call enraged the Oaks manager and Domeier, who insisted he was never touched.

Dublin then cleaned house in their half of the fifth, as a leadoff single by Thorson and a Lezcano grounder to short that was booted set the stage for a three-run rally. Morgan relieved Domeier in the inning.

Bill Page walked to load the bases, but the damage was done when Kichline scored on a wild pitch. Bob Abbey walked to again load the bags, and Lezcano and Page scored when a wild pitch by Morgan was followed by a smashup at home plate between Morgan and Lezcano. The alert Page scampered home when the Oaks' catcher was slow to retrieve the ball.

Dublin scored first in the Dodgers increased their lead to 2-0 as Mike Gibbons reached via an infield error. After Kichline and Thorson each grounded out, Lezcano slapped an RBI single up the middle to score Gibbons.

Centerfielder Mike DeSantis and right-fielder Mike Matheson made key catches to halt Oaks rallies during the contest, as Thorson was working out of trouble constantly.

In Senior TOC action tonight, Lone Star of Livermore National goes up against Centerville National at the Dublin Sports Grounds, while Dublin Valley plays either Newark National or Niles Centerville. Both games begin at 5:45, and each team is one loss away from elimination.

In Minor Invitational play tonight, Pleasanton American plays a semi-final contest at Mattos School on Farwell Drive in Fremont and Livermore American plays at the Dublin Sports Grounds in another semi-final tilt.

Raider hi-lites for jury

SAN FRANCISCO — The jury in George Atkinson's $2 million slander suit against the Pittsburgh Steelers got a glimpse of violence in professional football Tuesday.

Atkinson's attorney showed the six-member civil panel six brief film clips, including the Atkinson's ferocious hit on Steeler receiver Lynn Swann in a Pittsburgh-Oakland game last September 12.

Attorney Willie Brown also presented five clips showing plays in which Steeler defenders clobbered opposing players. Three were from the same Sept. 12 game.

The Atkinson-Swann incident led to comments by Pittsburgh Coach Chuck Noll, who linked Atkinson to a "criminal element" in pro football and said Atkinson tried to maim Swann. Atkinson, a nine year veteran defensive back, later filed suit.

Tuesday's movies were taken from Oakland coaches' training films, which show all the players on the field. Specific contact between players are difficult to see.

Attorney James MacInnis, representing Noll and the Steelers, has indicated he plans to present television closeups of the Atkinson-Swann incident during the trial.

The Atkinson-Swann film Tuesday, as described by Raider defensive backfield coach Bob Zeman, showed Swann being guarded by Atkinson, then being knocked down as a pass was caught in front of him.

"He (Atkinson) is very tense in that situation," Zeman said. "He has to protect against the long play and any move the receiver makes he has to react to. The defensive back is oblivious to anything else that is going on."

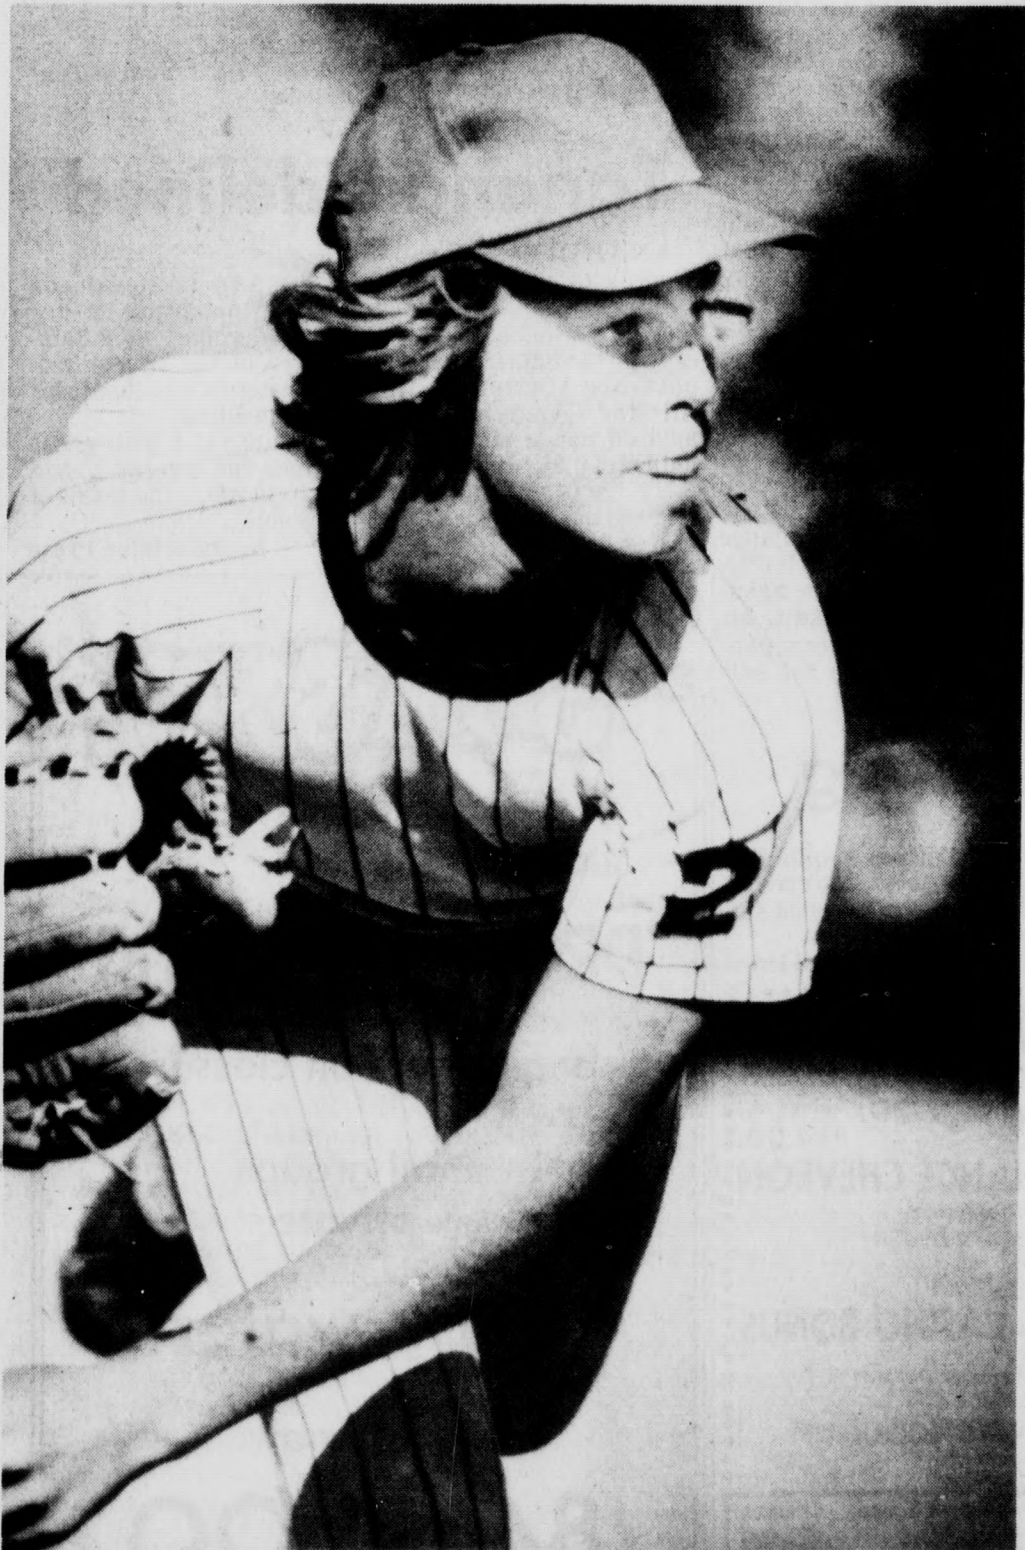

Zeman also compared the Atkinson incident to another film in which Steeler defensive back Mel Blount appeared to club Raider receiver Cliff Branch just at the end of a running play in which Branch was not involved.

"That kind of hit is not a sportsmanlike hit, it's an intimidation hit," Zeman said. "George's was on a play. It was a reaction hit."

Zeman said the violent acts depicted on the film clips were "all part of football" and nothing unusual.

The trial, which started Monday, is expected to last two to three weeks before U.S. District Judge Samuel Conti.

No surprise: no A's start for AL

NEW YORK — Rod Carew, Minnesota's brilliant first baseman who has been flirting with the .400 mark all season, heads the American League's starting team for the July 19 All-Star Game at Yankee Stadium, it was announced Tuesday.

Carew received 4,292,740 votes from fans who participated in the balloting for starting positions on the All-Star teams, more than any player in the eight-year history of the fan voting, according to the final tabulations released by Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's office.

Carew, batting .398 through Monday night's games, received 15,005 votes more than the National League leader, Steve Garvey of Los Angeles, also a first baseman. Carew has been chosen for the starting team in each of his 11 major league seasons.

A record 12,562,476 votes were counted in this year's balloting, far surpassing the mark of 8,370,145 set a year ago. Five American League players topped three million votes apiece.

The closest race in the past five years was at shortstop, where Rick Burleson of the Boston Red Sox edged Bucky Dent of the New York Yankees by just 3,426 votes. Burleson received 2,221,349 votes to 2,217,923 for Dent.

Completing the starting infield for the American League will be second baseman Willie Randolph of the Yankees and third baseman George Brett of the Kansas City Royals, last year's batting champion.

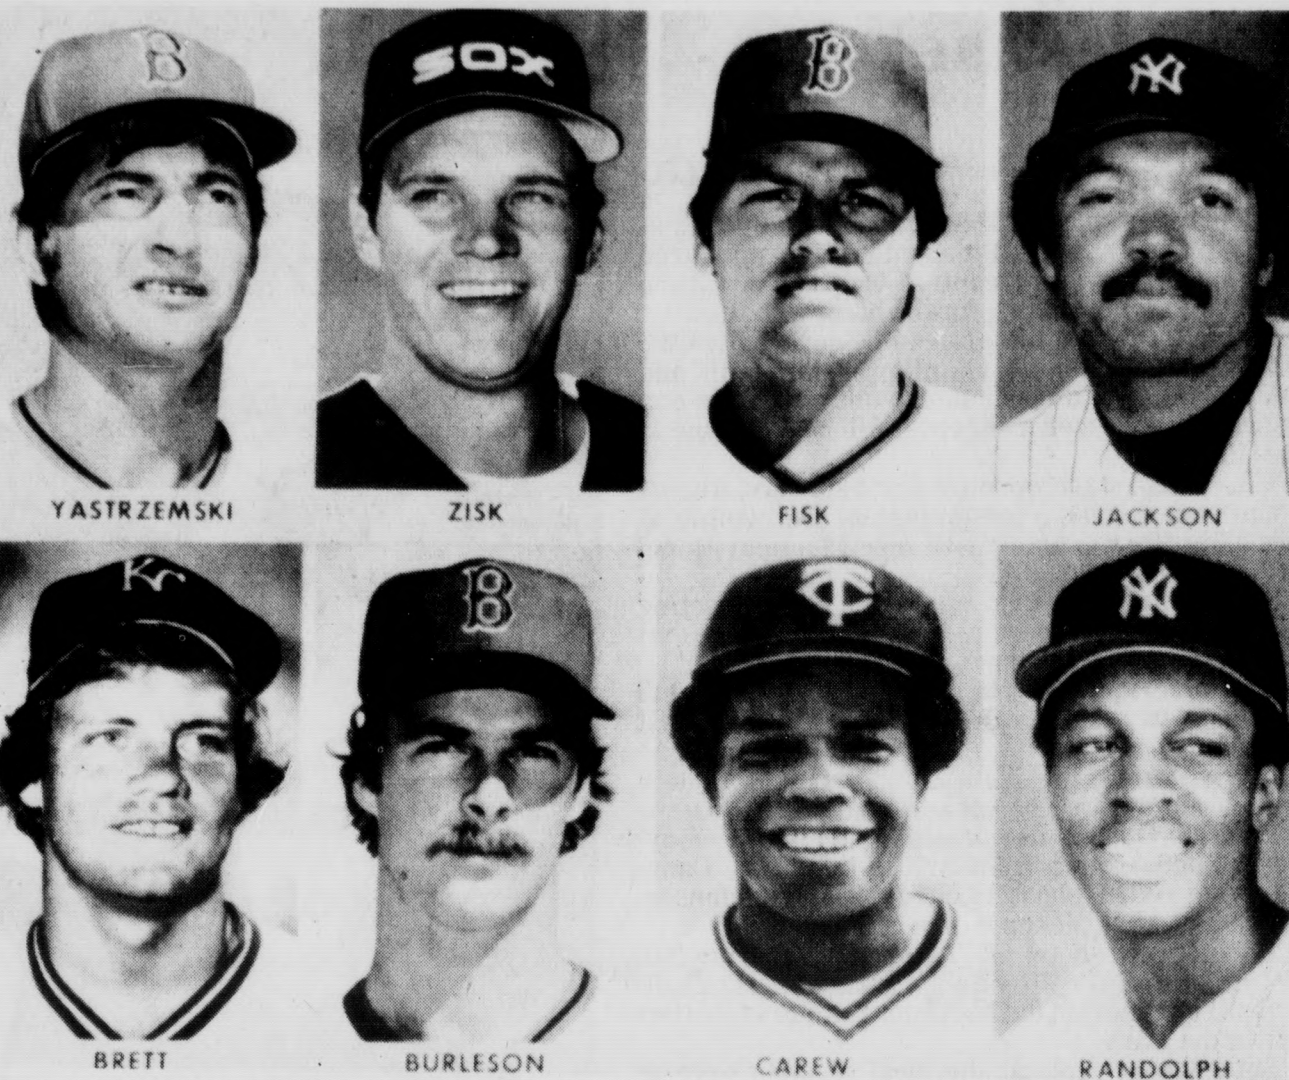

Randolph was an easy winner, receiving 2,846,479 votes to 2,053,642 for runner-up Don Money of Milwaukee. Brett had a tougher time, getting 3,058,453 votes to 2,671,129 for Graig Nettles of the Yankees.

There was an even tighter race for the starting catcher's spot, where Boston's Carlton Fisk edged Thurman Munson of the Yankees, 3,476,028 votes to 3,362,177.

The starting outfielders will be Carl Yastrzemski of Boston, Richie Zisk of the Chicago White Sox and Reggie Jackson of New York. Jackson climbed from fifth place a week ago to the No. 3 spot with 2,259,475 votes to 2,201,771 for fourth place finisher Fred Lynn of Boston.

Orioles give fans rest

BALTIMORE — The Baltimore Orioles have departed on a road trip at the peak of their game, but maybe it's just as well. Their emotionally drained fans need a rest.

Pennant fever has awakened staid old Baltimore with more apparent impact than when the Orioles won their first championship in 1966.

The 1977 team has special appeal, rising from ashes after being stripped of three free-agent stars who departed for more lucrative contracts elsewhere.

A weekend series against the store-bought New York Yankees served as a natural turnon, attracting a record Baltimore single-series attendance of 154,835.

It remains to be seen how the fans will turn out for opponents with less talent and a lower hate factor than the Yanks.

"I've never seen it like this around here," said Brooks Robinson, who played his first game in Baltimore in 1955. "The fans had a lot to do with the way the young players performed."

The crowd of 42,605, which watched the Orioles score a come-from-behind 4-3 victory Monday night, giving Baltimore a 3-1 series edge over New York, was unrestrained.

Cheers, spelling out O-R-I-O-L-E-S, rocked from the upper deck of Memorial Stadium. During the climactic winning rally in the ninth inning, just about everyone stood.

"I was in the first row, so I didn't stand," said Frank Cashen, a former Orioles' general manager, "and I felt inadequate ... that I wasn't functioning with the rest of the crowd."

"When they started those football cheers," said Al Bumbry, who tripled to start the winning rally, "I just got chills. I couldn't believe it."

The Orioles, who dropped 6½ games off the lead in the American League East last month, have pulled to within one-half game of first place Boston after winning 10 of their last 11. The Yanks now trail by 1½ games.

"The Orioles should have convinced everybody who saw this game that they're contenders for the pennant," said New York third baseman Graig Nettles, who slammed two homers in defeat. "I never thought they weren't."

"We're making believers out of people every day," said 21-year-old Eddie Murray, who drove in the tying run in the seventh and the winning run in the ninth.

One of seven rookies on the Baltimore roster, Murray is making converts with his own talent, batting .279 with 41 runs batted in, and driving in the winning run in four of the seven victories scored by the Orioles over the Yanks in 12 meetings.

Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver attached little significance to taking the series with so much of the season remaining.

"All it means," he said, "is that we're a half-game behind Boston in the middle of a pennant race."

Sports whirl

Oh clouts 736th home run

TOKYO — Sadaharu Oh blasted his 20th home run of the season, pacing the Yomiuri Giants to an 8-6 victory over the Chunichi Dragons Tuesday.

The homer was the 736th of Oh's career in the Japanese league. Hank Aaron, the lifetime leader in the major leagues, hit 755 homers with the Braves in Milwaukee and Atlanta and the Brewers in Milwaukee.

Africa ready

PARIS — Africa will send its best team to the first track and field World Cup in Dusseldorf, West Germany, Sept. 2-4. Jean-Claude Ganga, secretary-general of the Supreme Council for African Sport, said here Tuesday.

Africa had been threatening to boycott the World Cup because of the participation of New Zealand, whose sporting ties with South Africa led to the withdrawal of African athletes from the Montreal Olympics.

Ganga confirmed the African intention to compete at the top level at a meeting of the World Cup.

Sisters sweep

HAYLING ISLAND, England — Jan and Pat O'Malley, sisters from the United States, won the 420 Class race in the Women's World Sailing Championships at Hayling Island Tuesday.

The O'Malley sisters took an early lead but were passed by a British pair, Cathy Foster and Wendy Hilder. Then the wind dropped, and, in calmer conditions, the Americans regained the lead and went on to win by more than five minutes.

Another American, Poppy Truman, won the Laser Class event.

Franc wins

ROUBAIX, France — France's Jean-Pierre Danguillaume won Tuesday's 11th stage of the Tour de France bicycle race over 150.7 miles from Rouen in another sprint finish in the Roubaix velodrome.

Danguillaume finished the stage in 7 hours, 7 minutes and 10 seconds.

Leading the tour in standings was Dietrich Thurau of Germany in 68 hours, 28 minutes and 16 seconds, followed by Eddie Merckx of Belgium, 51 seconds behind.

Watson's $$

WASHINGTON — Tom Watson, who defeated Jack Nicklaus for the British

Open championship in a stirring head-to-head duel on the final round, also has the edge over Nicklaus in season earnings on the PGA tour.

Watson leads the weekly list of money winners released Tuesday by the PGA with $269,115. Nicklaus is far back in second at $214,341, then there's even a larger gap to the No. 3 man, Bruce Lietzke, who has won 169,786.

Completing the top 10 this week are Tom Wieskopf, $128,788; Hubert Green, $124,652; Ben Crenshaw, $105,645; Rik Massengale, $104,417; Hale Irwin, $103,745; Graham Marsh, $99,276, and Andy Bean, $98,469.

Keeps job

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — Billy Maxwell, an assistant track coach at the University of Tennessee, has turned down an offer to become head coach at Louisiana Tech.

Maxwell said he and his wife visited the Tech campus at Ruston, La., last week, but notified officials of the school Monday he would not take the job.

Maxwell, who also teaches mechanical drawing at Gresham Junior High School, coaches sprinters, hurdlers and jumpers under Stan Huntsman at Tennessee.

Tanana sidelined

ANAHEIM — Frank Tanana of the California Angels, the American League's winningest pitcher with 12 victories and the possible starter in the All-Star Game, has been advised not to pitch again until July 21, meaning he will miss the 48th mid-season game between the AL and National League. The Angels announced Tuesday night that the ace lefthander has an inflammation of the triceps tendon, where it attaches to his pitching elbow. Tanana, 12-6 with a 2.15 earned run average, said the injury was the result of overwork.

Hockey meetings start

TORONTO — The National Hockey League and World Hockey Association begin merger talks Wednesday with the Boston Bruins and Los Angeles Kings expected to wage a last-ditch effort to prevent the NHL from accommodating WHA franchises next season.

The Bruins and Kings are expected to oppose any changes in the NHL Players' Association agreement.

Since merger requires a 75 per cent majority vote by the 18 NHL teams, the opposition by Boston and Los Angeles hardly poses a threat to the majority.

But one NHL source says the league's lawyers have advised the league's Board of Governors that a unanimous vote by the NHL teams was required to make changes in the player agreement.

The NHL Board of Governors and players' association begin their meetings Wednesday.

At a meeting in Chicago last month, the NHL voted 17-1 to open the way to bids for franchises by a minimum of six WHA franchises. Kings owner Jack Kent Cooke's was the lone anti-merger voter. Since then, he has been joined by Boston.

The Bruins informed other owners this week that they would not vote for any changes in the collective bargaining agreement with the players' association, particularly the equalization clause. The 1976 agreement stated that if any accommodation between the leagues occurred, then the agreement was void.

The equalization clause is the key to the deal. It stipulates that if a free agent player changes teams, his new team must compensate his old club for services with players, cash or draft choices, subject to binding arbitration.

The NHLPA has suggested a set compensation arrangement based on the salary of the free agent who changes teams.

LL stars chosen

All star baseball teams for three area Little Leagues were announced yesterday and feature two team dominance in one league and even balance in the other two.

In the Livermore American Major League, Sambo's and Burton's each landed five players on the squad of 16 with Groth Brothers' contributing three to the team. The Sambo's all-stars include Tom Braun, Mike Gillette, Ken Higby, Steve Sandholtz and Pat Trimmer. From Burton's come Ed Governor, Harold Harmon, Joe Lamendola, Bill Magann and Dave Stockman. The trio from Groth Brothers' lists Chuck Anderson, Eric Bell and Kevin Fallon with Rich Gutierrez and Greg Mellor from Valley Realty and Randy Green of Straw Hat Pizza rounding out the team.

The Livermore American all-stars will play Dublin Valley's major league all-star team on Tuesday July, 26 on the Livermore National Little League field in a 5:45 p.m. contest.

Also announced were the select groups from the Pleasanton National and Senior Major leagues.

National all-stars include Mark Claypool of the Braves; John Ayers and Pat Waters, Cubs; Rick Gabler and Jeff Jantzen from the Dodgers; Graham

Alexander and Jeff Wilson, Padres; Jeff Arnott and John Boruk, both Giant players; Steve Ferolito and Dan Sweeney, Phillies; Pirates' Kevin Ackerman and Mike Nostrand and Greg Scott of the Reds.

In the major division, the Padres landed four players on the team, with Greg Danska, Bill Edwards, Bill Seroa and Casey Strom all qualifying. Other major league all-stars are Jon Anderson and Ron Capilla of the Dodgers; Steve Woodward, Doug Sanky, Dave Hegger and Eric Whalen, all of the Pirates; Mike Bowling and Dave Konecny, Phillies; Dennis Golcher from the Cubs and Dave Valdix, Braves.

CINCINNATI — The Cincinnati Reds acknowledged Tuesday the sudden retirement of starting pitcher Woodie Fryman and said they probably would hold off finding a replacement until next week's All-Star break.

Fryman, 5-5 this season, announced Monday that he was retiring from baseball, effective immediately. The announcement came one day after the 37-year-old left-hander left the club because of what was announced as personal business.

Dick Wagner, Reds general manager, said he talked with Fryman Tuesday and would comply with the pitcher's wish to be placed on the voluntary retired list.

Jack Billingham — who had troubles before being exiled to the bullpen — was moved back, at least temporarily, into the starting rotation for Wednesday's game.

Fryman was acquired in a trade with Montreal, where he was 13-13 last season.

Allied goes for broke

A four-run rally in the sixth inning gave Allied Brokers a 4-3 victory over The Professionals in Livermore Recreation CI League men's softball action.

Sal Hunter smashed a home run with two men on for the big blow of the inning. John Evans and Ron Wilds each had singles.

The Professionals scored three times in the third. A double by Art Hermsillo scored three runs. Cliff Ferreria and Joe Bengiman singled ahead of Hermsillo and Ray Street reached base on a fielders' choice.

Hunter also had a single for Allied Brokers. Art Hill had a double and single for the losers and Bengiman added two hits.

Cal Farm Insurance also won a thriller, topping Hayward Pallet 4-3.

The victors scored four times in the fourth to sew up the victory.

Three straight errors and singles by Ken Rogers and Pete Toleman scored the four Farm tallies.

Toleman had two hit to lead the winners' attack.

Hayward scored three times in the sixth to make the game close.

Doubles by Jim Gillette and Jarrell Hudson keyed the Pallet rally. Two Cal Farm errors also helped.

Jack Papagna had a double and single to lead the losers.

Truckin shutout the Livermore JC's 3-0, scoring twice in the third and once in the sixth.

After two outs in the third Al Tassel singled and reached second on an error. Tom Jacques then singled Tassel in and Dennis Prater followed with another one-bagger to send Jacques to third. Another error brought Jacques home.

The winners scored their sixth-inning run on two errors and a single by Joe Barberara.

Truckin had eight hits and the losers picked up five.

Rich Burkhead had two singles for Truckin.

Bruce Chappell was the main thrust of the JC's attack with two singles. No JC player had more than a single.

T-V Macks split

Tri-Valley split a pair of games with E. Bercovich in Connie Mack action Saturday.

Bercovich won the first contest, 2-1 as each team collected four hits. However, Tri-Valley made four errors which sealed its fate.

Mike Connolly led the losers with two hits. Wes Karch had a triple and RBI and Mark Davis a single for the losers.

Tim Clarke, Brad Gouveia, Jeff Mueller and Steve Mendonca each had one hit for the winners. Clarke added an RBI.

Davis fanned 15 batters in a brilliant game. Mendonca struck out nine.

Tri-Valley romped in the second contest, 8-2.

The winners belted 13 hits to six for E. Bercovich. Ken Franco, Bob Tarte and Dan Wilkes each had two hits for the winners. Franco and Wilkes each collected two RBIs. Sean Mays, who was drafted by the New York Mets before deciding to go to junior college, added a double as did Wes Karch.

Brad Burnham, David and Rick Kiezer each had one hit. Davis had a double and RBI.

Kiezer was the winning pitcher and Reimey took the defeat.

Dan Pearson led the losers with two hits and drove in one run.

CB's flushed at Atwater

Erratic defense proved to be Charlie Brown's downfall as the Realtors lost a doubleheader to host Atwater Monday, 8-3, and 8-2 in Senior Babe Ruth action.

Mike Krikorian only gave up five hits in the first game but eight walks and the mistakes were his downfall. Charlie Brown outhit Atwater, getting six hitters.

John Bachleda, Mike

Rohrer and Darrell Stone each had two hits for the winners.

Rohrer only allowed four hits in the second contest but had nine walks.

The losers had five hits. Krikorian had two hits in two trips to the plate. Darren Ston Stone also had two hits and Rohrer had an RBI single.

Charlie Brown is now 10-12 for the seasons. It plays Castro Valley three times this weekend.

Pop grid inks

tween 65 and 100 pounds. The Jr. Midget Division is for players who weight between 80 and 125 pounds.

A sporting week in Britain

Pulling a few loose notes out of the pocket from Wimbledon and Turnberry and filing away the subject until next year:

Throw all the tournament golfers onto a course and the only way you can tell them apart is by the make of clubs and balls they use. They all have grooved swings that could come out of a mold. They let their hair grow long, wear horizontally striped rugby shirts, hit the ball a ton, knock in 60-foot putts as if they were taps and have the boldness of a bandit.

What separates the greats from the near-greats is what the late Bob Jones called "the five-inch area that lies between the two ears." Golf is not a game of shot-making. It is a test of shot management — concentration, determination and, excuse the expression, plain old guts.

This was never better illustrated than in the magnificent shootout at Turnberry last weekend between Tom Watson and Jack Nicklaus. It was a duel of wills rather than skills and, at the dramatic finish, the two great champions had fled the rest of the field and were out there alone punching away like two fighters in the ring.

To overtake Nicklaus, winner of 14 major pro championships and the acknowledged No. 1 player in the world, it was necessary for golf to produce a player of equal steel. It has done so in the person of the 27-year-old, freckle-faced killer from Kansas City. Watson is the creature of positive thinking — a fine striker of the ball but, more than that, tough, unshakeable in crisis, capable of producing the big shot at the big moment.

A rare breed, indeed, and you can count them on both hands — Jones, Hagen, Hogan, Palmer, Trevino, Nicklaus. Sit back and enjoy him. The next 10 years might well be "The Watson Decade."

Jumping from Wimbledon's grass courts to the craggy knobs of Turnberry's Ailsa course, one is immediately struck by the difference in personalities of the athletes who swing tennis rackets and those who wield golf clubs.

Golfers, as a body, are nicer guys. Even the young ones are more mature, more considerate of the fans and press, more aware that they are merely actors on a big stage playing a game for huge stakes.

The game itself is a great humbler and seems to breed athletes of modesty and understanding. By contrast, tennis players are first spoiled by parents and then pampered by promoters and hangers-on. This encourages a fat-headedness and an arrogance that reflects itself in court tantrums, vulgarities and insolence made notorious by such firebrands as Ilie Nastase and Jimmy Connors.

A's drop two

Dublin Valley's A's lost a pair of games to the Mission San Jose Saints but gained a 3-3 tie with the Newark Cougars in Big League action last weekend.

MSJ breezed in the first contest, 11-2, getting 13 hits. The A's had six hits. Bret Cary collected three of them and Mark Smith added two. Cary had an RBI.

Steve Hitchen and Ray Wisebrod each had three hits for the winners.

Ray Francisco was the winning pitcher and Joe Raposa took the defeat.

The Saints won the second game, 7-3.

Chuck Cary led the A's with three hits and three RBIs.

Barry Walters, Brett Cary and Raposa each added two hits. Walters smashed a double.

Allen Haley had four hits and three RBIs for the winners.

Mark Vincenzi was the winning pitcher and Walters took the defeat. Bret Cary pitched four innings of relief with only one earned run.

Bret Cary, Chuck Cary and Mark Smith each had two hits in the tie with the Cougars.

The game was called after eight innings due to darkness. The Cougars came up with two unearned runs in the bottom of the eighth to tie the game.

Bret Cary now has a .556 batting average. Chuck Cary has batted .444, Larry Walters .404 and Gregg Cary .321.

Nastase match switched

OAKLAND — Due to Davis Cup commitments with the Rumanian government, Ilie Nastase will not be able to make his July 21 match in Oakland against the Golden Gateers.

Therefore, by a request of the Los Angeles Strings, coupled with a feeling on the part of Gaters' management to allow Bay Area fans to see Nastase in his only Bay Area appearance, the Strings match is being rescheduled for Mon., Aug. 1. The site will be the Oakland Coliseum and the time will still be 7:30 p.m.

All tickets for MATCH NO. 14 on July 21 will now be valid for the Aug. 1 match.

"Rescheduling a match to accommodate a star can have serious consequences," said Assistant to the President, Robert Horowitz. "If the Gaters had not encountered appearance conflicts with Nastase last year, and if it was not his only Bay Area match (the Gaters play Los Angeles in Fresno July 25) the change of date would not have been made."

Consumer slowdown serious signal

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer purchasing declined in June for the third consecutive month, the Commerce Department reported Tuesday in the most serious signal yet that the economy may be headed for a significant slowdown in months ahead.

While it may be only a coincidence, the slowdown in consumer buying started in April almost simultaneously with President Carter's decision to withdraw his proposal for a $50 tax rebate for every American. That decision was announced on April 14.

The Commerce Department estimated total retail sales in June at $59.233 billion, down very slightly from the May total of $59.247 billion.

The decline in dollar terms was less than one-tenth of 1 per cent. But since the sales figures are not adjusted for inflation, the decline in consumer buying in real terms was probably significantly greater. The June decline in retail sales followed a three-tenths of 1 per cent decline in May and a drop of one-tenth of 1 per cent in April.

Prior to April, retail sales had increased at a substantial pace during the previous two months after Carter took office and announced his tax rebate proposal.

At the time Carter withdrew his tax rebate, several prominent administration officials, including Secretary of Labor Ray Marshall, had said consumers may have been spending their rebates in advance and could be left with empty pockets if they did not get them.

Combined with other recent unfavorable economic statistics, including a rise in unemployment in June to 7.1 per cent and the first decline in several months in the government's index of economic indicators, the sag in retail sales may add to fears the economy is entering another slowdown, similar to the severe economic pause in mid-1976.

The Commerce Department said in its June sales report that sales in both durable and nondurable goods were virtually unchanged from May.

Apartheid probe by county

Alameda County Bureau
OAKLAND — County supervisors struck a compromise blow to South African apartheid yesterday in the first step to what may be the withdrawal of retirement board funds from firms doing business in the white supremacist country.

Taking paragraphs from black supervisor John George's resounding denunciation of South Africa and fellow north county supervisor Fred Cooper's request for responses from the firms allegedly involved, Valley representative Valerie Raymond pieced together an offer that passed the board with the bare three votes necessary.

The resolution does not direct the retirement board to drop investments in U.S. firms doing business in South Africa as George moved, but calls for a joint committee with the City of Oakland to investigate the "more effective" means of fighting apartheid.

George abstained on the final ballot, claiming the measure was "does not go far enough." Supervisor Joseph Bort of Castro Valley voted against it, while Raymond, Cooper and board chairman Charles Santana of Hayward supported it.

Cooper cited the work of the Rev. Leon Sullivan, a black Philadelphia minister and director of the General Motors Corp., who has "persuaded (GM) and 35 other American firms to operate in South Africa on the basis of non-segregation of the races, equal and fair employment practices, equal pay for employees doing equal work, training programs for non-whites, upgrading non-whites to supervisory positions, improving the lives of employees in housing, schooling, recreation, etc."

George, who last week showed supervisors a film on the brutal segregationist policies of the white supremacist government, wanted the retirement board to "set as a goal" the elimination of its investment money in U.S. firms doing business in the African state.

Cooper said the East Bay committee "in a nutshell" should "decide which of the alternatives is likely to be more effective."

If the Oakland City Council accepts the idea, the eight member committee will be made up of two appointments each from county supervisors, city council, the county's and the city's retirement boards.

Bort said he could not support either motion fearing the boycott could extend to day-to-day county business dealings. The firms allegedly involved "should be given a chance to be heard," he said.

The board went through three resolutions before settling on Raymond's compromise.

It rejected Bort's attempt to solicit responses from the corporations; split on George's strong motion; and finally settled on the compromise.

Patients hurt

BERKELEY (AP) — A convalescent home here has been shut down by the state Department of Health after investigators said they discovered some of its ailing patients had suffered "unexplained bruises and injuries."

The 24 patients of the Shattuck-Carleton Convalescent Hospital, nearly all of them elderly and bed-ridden, were transferred to other facilities after the closure Monday.

The hospital has been fined more than $43,000 for alleged health and safety violations.

Sunshine Boys Sign for TV

LOS ANGELES (AP) — George Burns and Jack Albertson, award winners for the same role in "The Sunshine Boys," will be appearing together in a CBS movie special, "The Comedy Shop."

Burns will make a guest appearance in the 2 1/2-hour film to be produced by MGM Television. Albertson stars as the owner of a comedy night club that is saved from bankruptcy by a show starring Burns.

They Were Made For Each Other

Renee Taylor and Joseph Bologna star in the droll comedy and love story, "Made For Each Other," at 9 p.m. Wednesday on Channel 10.

The couple, who in real life are husband and wife, wrote the film, as they did their earlier "Lovers and Other Strangers."

Pandora (Panda) Gold and Gig (Giggy) Pinimba, a couple of urban misfits, meet on Christmas Eve at an emergency encounter group, where they reveal their life stories — tales of neurotic families, unrequited love and frustrated ambitions.

"Made For Each Other," a comedy about two unlikely lovers to be shown at 9 p.m. Wednesday on Channels 5 and 44, stars Renee Taylor and Joseph Bologna. The film was written by the two, who are husband and wife.

Four rejections later his idea lands on television

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dan Curtis, TV producer, says he went through a time in 1952 as an NBC barnstormer, selling syndicated TV series to various stations in various towns in the Midwest.

"What shows," he recalled with a sardonic grin, "Dangerous Assignment," "Hopalong Cassidy," "Douglas Fairbanks Theater," "His Honor, Homer Bell"...

But while hawking this vast sonata of entertainment, he had this comedy series idea about his boyhood in Bridgeport, Conn. And when he got back to New York, he commenced writing it.

He says he called it "When Every Day Was the Fourth of July."

Four rejections and 25 years later, he's just finished filming it as an NBC movie for next year — as a pilot for a possible one-hour family series set in Bridgeport in the late 1930s.

It still has the original title. But there's less emphasis on comedy and more emphasis on serious matters, namely a little girl who persuades her father, a lawyer, to defend a brain-damaged World War One veteran accused of a murder she knows he didn't commit.

It's a change of pace for Curtis, a horror show specialist. He used to produce the old soap-opera-cum-vampire series, "Dark Shadows," then made about 16 TV thrillers, movies like "Dracula" and "The Night Stalker."

A stocky, casually dressed man of 49, he says he never gave up on making "When Every Day Was the Fourth of July" even after his old employer, NBC, first rejected it in 1952.

He got a second rejection two years later from MCA, the giant entertainment conglomerate, when he worked there. CBS then got interested, he says, but the project never panned out.

"Now, the best thing that happened was that I never sold it, because I never would have done this kind of show," says Curtis, referring to the program in its present form.

"The whole idea always was a kind of 'Leave It to Beaver' set in the 1930s. But my thinking hadn't matured enough then."

He said he pitched it to NBC for a second time two years ago, still as a sitcom idea. But after initial interest, NBC passed again.

Last year, he said, he started thinking about it as a pilot for an hour-long family show, "still with humor, warmth and all the rest of it."

"But also we'd be taking on more serious subjects, things that really happened or could have happened in the '30s, and not just things involving only kids."

Whereupon he again pitched it to NBC — successfully this time.

Albert Finney hustling his wares on the talk shows

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — What's this? Albert Finney singing on the Johnny Carson and Merv Griffin shows and hustling his album around to radio stations like a rock star on the rise?

His loyal followers in the English theath might give a sniff at such mundane activity. Finney, a classical actor of wide reputation, seems unconcerned. He has launched an 11-city American tour which he hopes will sell more than a few copies of his Motown release, "Albert Finney's Album."

As he began his travels, he reflected, "This kind of promotion is a very different experience for me. Throughout my acting career, I have tried to maintain a degree of anonymity. My reasoning was that if you established too strong an image personally, it would outweigh whatever character you are playing."

Earlier in his career he put that theory into practice. In 1963 he became an instant star with his raucous portrayal of "Tom Jones" — Academy Award nomination and all that. He followed with his electrifying performance in "Luther" on Broadway. Then he vanished.

"I had been a professional actor for eight years, with no break, no vacation," he recalled. "Not knowing what I wanted to do, I took a year off to travel. I went to Fiji, Tahiti, Australia, Japan, Hong Kong, Bangkok. Alone. Well, from time to time."

He declined a blooming fortune by turning down "Lawrence of Arabia," preferring to devote himself largely to the theater. He has appeared in only a dozen films in 18 years.

"A man's responsibility is to himself," reasoned Finney, athletically handsome at 41. "My agent gets upset, but I don't have any trouble explaining it to myself. As I started in the world with nothing, if I finish with nothing and have had a good time en route, then I am ahead of the game."

"My responsibilities are not too great. I have a son from my first marriage and my mother to take care of; my father has died. I think you can get trapped on a treadmill of earning if you become too encumbered with responsibilities. You lose the power of personal choice."

Finney's choice is to play the major classical roles while he is able. That means commitments to the National Theater for 16 months at a time, with eight months off to do films.

He is on hiatus now, and having found no movie he likes, he's doing the disc-promo bit.

"I've sung before," he remarked. "Back in 1960 I did a kind of avant garde musical at the Royal Court, 'The Lily White Boys,' about three young Teddy Boys on the rise. It was not a popular success. Then I sang in 'Scrooge,' the movie I did with Ronnie Neame."

While seeking organ music for a play, Finney encountered musician Dennis King. With King on the piano Finney recorded some pop ballads.

Record executive David Platz, who had once urged Finney to make an album, made his pitch again. The actor agreed, but what to sing?

"I think I'll try to write the lyrics myself," he said. And he did.

A different way to budget

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — There's no mystery or magic about it, says the man in charge of changing the way the government does business on the budget.

But there are questions about zero base budgeting, and there is a jargon that certainly sounds mysterious.

There are "discrete increments of services" (which means separate and distinct government programs) and "goal congruence" (which means corresponding and harmonious objectives) and "prioritizing" (which didn't make the dictionary, but means ranking by order of importance and desirability).

Then there are decision packages, brief accounts of what the government is doing in each discrete increment of service, how much it has been costing, and what it should cost next year.

Nobody really knows how many decision packages will be wrapped into the preparation of President Carter's budget for the government year beginning on Oct. 1, 1978. They'll find out in a month or so, when the agencies start delivering their packages to the Office of Management and Budget.

For all of that, and for all the skeptics in Congress and elsewhere, the administration is confident that the new system can be implemented swiftly and efficiently, and that it will pay dividends, in savings and in improved federal programs.

"There's nothing mystical or magical about zero base budgeting," said James T. McIntyre Jr., deputy director of the Office of Management and Budget. "It's a very simple process. It forces old programs to compete with new programs and new initiatives..."

The idea is to draft the budget on the basis of programs and their objectives, instead of last year's numbers. Each program is supposed to be analyzed by the people who run it and who, in theory, know best whether it is working effectively or whether there are better ways to do the job. That leads to the decision package, which covers proposed spending.

Each echelon of the government gets the decision packages from the levels below, imposes its priorities, and passes on a consolidated package.

And in the end, President Carter sets the figures and priorities in a zero base budget. He'll send it to Congress next winter. The format and content will be like those of prior budgets. The difference is in preparation, not presentation. And Carter says the new system will reduce costs, while making government more efficient and effective.

The big difference is in the process that is going on now, as government agencies prepare the budget recommendations that will be submitted to the Office of Management and Budget in September.

"This system requires that the people who run programs be involved in the budget," McIntyre said. "That provides communication from the bottom up. That's how you get realistic alternatives to the way we're doing things..."

"It forces a manager to make some tough decisions. If he didn't have to prioritize, he could just say 'I want it all.'"

McIntyre said the new budget system also will lead to closer examination of what the government is really doing — "at the programs, at the way we're delivering services around the country."

Carter's decision to go ahead immediately with the shift to zero base budgeting is in contrast to his cautious, methodical pace on such items as tax and welfare reform and government reorganization.

Rep. Max Baucus, D-Mont., a congressional expert on zero base budgeting, advised Carter against it. He wrote Carter that the new system should be phased in, with only selected agencies and programs subject to zero base budgeting this year.

He said an immediate, governmentwide shift would risk compromising the program beneath a mountain of paperwork.

LARPD ponders new stadium use policy

LIVERMORE — Directors of Livermore Area Recreation and Park District hope to institute a new policy for use of the Livermore Valley Stadium in Robertson Park.

A proposed policy will be presented for the directors when they meet 7:30 to-night.

"We've never had a stadium use policy before," said Hal Adams, LARPD administrative assistant. He explained the policy was needed "as we are getting closer and closer to having stadium lights and the possibility of several large groups wanting to use it."

He said some groups have approached the distract with the idea of presenting more shows on the scale of the recent Mel Tillis concert.

"We developed the policy to meet these requests with uniformity in operation," he said.

The policy includes priorities of stadium use, scheduling, special requirements and conditions (insurance, liquor rules, etc.), fee categories and concessions.

In other business

LARPD directors will:

- discuss feasibility studies in progress for starting a skateboard park and an off-road motorcycle park. Enthusiasts for both sports have asked the district to provide the facilities and LARPD officials have been studying similar facilities in other areas of the state.
- discuss the progress of a special jogging - physical fitness course scheduled for construction this summer at Max Baer Park and the adjoining schools, Smith Elementary and Mendenhall Junior High.

- conduct a public hearing for the LARPD budget of $2,187,185.
- consider reapplying for funding under SB174 for sewer and water lines in Robertson Park. The district has been notified its project would not be funded in the current allocations.

Herbert Rhodes, director of the county department of parks and recreation, wrote to LARPD that the project was not considered as urgent as the urban areas emphasized in the funding of $4 million allocated for the county.

- consider a request by Livermore City Council that LARPD join in a smoking ban in public buildings, including specific smoking sections to be allowed.

Horse enthusiasts have used Sycamore Grove Park, but now it is open for all.

Sycamore Grove Park offers nature trails

LIVERMORE — Sycamore Grove Park opened unceremoniously this past week.

Officials of the Livermore Area Recreation and Park District opened the park without official publicity because they were still completing the piping that will carry fire fighting water to the park.

"It's very dry out there," said Lowell Bergman, superintendent of parks.

Bergman said a ranger is now on duty from 7:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., weekdays, and 8 a.m. to dusk on weekends.

Describing it as basically a "nature park," Bergman said a bicycle trail is being graded and will be blacktopped some time next week.

LARPD will develop and operate several special ecological areas in the park later in the summer, but Bergman urged people to just "walk around and have a picnic."

He cautioned, however, that no fires or smoking will be allowed at Sycamore Grove because of the drought.

The park is south of Livermore on Arroyo Road, before the Veterans Hospital and adjacent Veterans Park.

Camp Bronco, located in Veterans Park, has used the Sycamore Grove Park for trail rides the past two years, Bergman said.

Sunol rancher tops fair livestock bidders

Sunol rancher Carl Zwissig once again led the list of champion buyers at the Junior Livestock Auction held on the closing day Sunday of the Alameda County Fair.

Total gross sales for the auction amounted to $134,489 for 406 swine, beef and sheep. Last year's figures were $119,685 for 456 animals.

There were almost 900 registered buyers for the sale, some 128 more than last year. Two hundred and fifty were new.

Zwissig led the list of champion buyers with 12 steers. He was also a champion buyer at the Grand National held at the Cow Palace in San Francisco.

Other prominent champion and reserve champion buyers included Dr. William Stahl of Pleasanton, Milt Codioli of Livermore, Howard and Mello Plumbing of Livermore, Hillside Catering of Albany, Fire

Matic Systems of Campbell, Woodhill Development of Alameda, Gil Rennecker of Alameda, and Joseph Tuoto of San Mateo.

The 65th Alameda County Fair closed its annual two-week run Sunday with an attendance of 28,285, bringing the 15-day total to 402,822. Though 31,000 short of the record 1975 Fair attendance, the mark is still the second best overall crowd count in Fair history.

Nw marks were also established in single day pari-mutuel wagering ($1.5 million), season wagering (slightly over $1 million per day), single day track attendance (just over 18,500) and seasonal track attendance.

The Pleasanton fair has historically led Northern and Central California fairs in overall attendance, track attendance and pari-mutuel wagering.

Champion FFA hog, Suzanne Pomin of Livermore, buyer Dr. William Stahl of Pleasanton, price $1.25; Champion 4-H hog, Brian Cook of Crane Ridge 4-H, Fire Matic Systems, price $1.30; Reserve champion FFA hog, odd Bettencourt of Livermore, Woodhill Development of Alameda, price $1.60; 4-H hog, Lisa Varni of Palomares 4-H, Ron's Hr. ## 'Those Forgotten Closets' is family counseling topic

"Those Forgotten Closets" is the Evening with Anthropolos topic for today. Licensed marriage, family and child counselors Jill Raiguel and Jackie Stratton will lead participants at the 8 to 10 p.m. workshop in discovering areas that limit and release them.

For $2 the curious will learn "selective awareness," an exciting technique that Jill Raiguel says "is a powerful tool to help people with such problems as weight and smoking."

The workshop leaders will look for the "sensitizing event" that may have caused unconscious and conscious fears, such as being afraid of swimming pools.

By taking individuals into a deep meditative state, explains Jill, the counselors are able to help discover what past event triggered today's fear or problem.

"We can begin to unhook patterns," believes Jill,

"and set up a new program for the unconscious."

Evening with Anthropolos is open to the public and is located at 1814 Catalina Ct. in Livermore.

Marine World: a lot for less

For that once-a-year big splurge on the kids, parents are faced with a choice of two all-day endurance tests: Marine World or Great America.

Both amusement parks are guaranteed to produce sore feet and sunburned noses. But Marine World is guaranteed to lighten the wallet considerably less — first, because they allow picnicking, where Great America forces people to buy the Marriott Corp.'s food; second, because the admission prices of $5.90 for adults, $3.50 for children 5-12, are considerably lower than those of Marine World's flashy rival.

Located in Redwood City just a few minutes south of the Hayward-San Mateo Bridge, Marine World is cooled — and sometimes chilled — by bay breezes. Nearly everything is outdoors, making sunglasses and a hat second only to a jacket in importance here.

Marine World's gates open at 9:30 a.m. Petting the dolphins (which do bite, says the sign), ambling through the shadowy aquarium and watching a lively colony of sea otters are some of the engaging pastimes until the park's seven shows commence their staggered schedule at 10 a.m.

Most popular is the killer whale show, starring two handsome, well-trained whales and their handsome, suntanned young trainers. Sit in the first four rows to get refreshingly drenched when the whales leap out of the water at 30 mph.

Kids love the water ski show. This extravaganza features dangerous-looking tricks performed with speedboats, water skis and human bodies spraying along through the water and miraculously never colliding. A little comic relief is provided by "Tarzan" in a green spotted wetsuit, calling upon a shaggy "gorilla" to set the audience squealing in mock terror.

Off in a quiet corner is an "ecology" show with young jungle animals. Then there's a larger jungle show starring well-trained elephants and lions, and an appealing performance by trained birds.

Most children soon tire of sitting in the glaring sun watching performances or standing by a railing looking at the baby seals. But they never seem to get bored at the petting zoo, which offers up young goats and a donkey to their adoring hugs.

A nice 10-minute rest — once you've waited in line for 15 minutes — is provided by a covered raft which floats past islands inhabited by ostriches, kudus, tigers, monkeys and other exotic animals. For an extra 75 cents, ride a plodding elephant or take a bumpy camel ride in a shady corner of the park.

By closing time — 6:30 p.m. — most visitors appear dazed and a little crabby from all that walking and looking.

But, if they don't try to cram too much in, visitors can come away with a sense of discovery and excitement.

Promise of tight check on county agency budgets

Lesh News Bureau
MARTINEZ — The proposed budgets of 66 special taxing agencies governed by the Board of Supervisors were accepted by the board Tuesday, with promises of closer than usual scrutiny before final budgets are adopted.

The budgets include those of the county-wide Flood Control and Water Conservation District and the almost county-wide County Water Agency, as well as those for flood control zones, storm drainage and sanitation districts, and county service areas for police, library construction, recreation, street lighting, and other "city" services in unincorporated areas.

Supervisor Eric Hasseltine, Danville, urged careful scrutiny and said the budgets should be treated in the same manner as the county budget.

The supervisors have agreed the property tax income to the county budget should increase no more than about 7.5 percent, approximately the cost of living increase for the area, although county assessed valuation is expected to rise over 16 percent.

Special districts too often take advantage of assessed value increases, collecting greater amounts of property tax monies while keeping their tax rates the same, Hasseltine said.

Supervisor Robert Schroder, Walnut Creek, noted the special districts are supported almost entirely with property tax money.

The first public hearing on the budgets was scheduled for next Tuesday's board meeting, when district budgets will also be heard.

The Water Agency tentative budget calls for expenditure of $470,355, a decrease of 7.6 percent from 1976-77. Of that amount, $128,900 would be raised from a property tax rate of 4 mills, the same as last year. The rest is unspent from previous years.

The money would be used to finance agency activities to defend water quality standards in the Delta. The county-wide flood control budget is estimated at $1.44 million, an increase of 7.7 percent from last year, with $654,000 raised from a tax rate of 2 cents, the same as last year.

The owner of a $60,000 home would pay about $2.65 at a tax rate of 2 cents per $100 assessed valuation. The district's huge Zone 3B, covering most of the Central County, is requesting a budget of $7.5 million to finance flood control projects. Of the total, $679,400 would be raised by a tax rate of 5 cents, half of last year's rate.

PROPOSED BUDGETS FOR OTHER SPECIAL DISTRICTS INCLUDE:

Financing new library tops Dublin meet agenda today

DUBLIN — Whether to pay off Dublin's new library debt of $862,000 in a hurry or stretch it out and let future generations help foot the bill will be the main topic of discussion this evening at 7:30 at the old Dublin library, 6930 Village Parkway in Dublin.

Construction of the new 14,600 square foot library will hopefully begin in the fall at the corner of Amador Valley Boulevard and Starward Drive in Dublin, according to Virginia Bennett. She is librarian at the Dublin Public Library.

"It will probably take two years to complete the new library which is needed very badly since we have completely outgrown the old one," Bennett said.

"We have thousands of books in dead storage because we have no place to arrange them. Boy, do we ever need a new library!"

The two acres of land on which the library will be built cost $240,000. That parcel is "bought and paid for," Bennett reported.

"That money was collected as a result of the creation of a library taxing district that was voted in by the people of the community in 1974."

The tax rate voted in was 25 cents per $100, according to Bennett.

The community agreed to pay the tax until one million dollars had been accumulated to pay for the new land and building. When the building is completed, the library tax district will self-destruct, Bennett explained.

"The object of the meeting is to see how long the people want to remain involved in that taxing district. Advisors have projected two alternatives for paying off the debt. We can set up a non-profit organization and sell bonds or we can borrow from the Alameda County retirement board and pay them back out of taxes collected for the library district."

Bartles and Wells Association, a consulting firm from San Francisco, has been studying the situation and is going to advise citizens and library officials what to do.

"Of course, they realize citizen approval has to come first," Bennett said. "They aren't using an arbitrary approach."

Local officials, including Supervisor Valerie Raymond, will be at the discussion this evening, Bennett said.

The Dublin Public Library is now located at 6930 Village Parkway in Dublin.

CCC board postpones vote on planner units

BY RUSS YARROW
Lesh News Bureau
MARTINEZ — The questions two supervisors and the absence of Board Chairman Warren Boggess Tuesday led to a week's delay in the adoption of an ordinance instituting autonomous planning commissions in Orinda and the San Ramon Valley.

Although the ordinance was introduced and tentatively approved last week on a 3-2 vote, with Nancy Fahden Martinez, and

James Kenny, Richmond, dissenting, it failed to be approved this week, apparently because Boggess, of Concord, was not there to swing the vote.

The ordinance was originally proposed and developed by Supervisors Robert Schroder, Walnut Creek, and Eric Hasseltine, Danville.

They both voted to hold it over Tuesday since a split vote would mean it failed to be adopted and would have to go through another hearing process again.

Both Fahden and Kenny expressed reservations about the ordinance, which would authorize the two separate planning commissions on a two-year experimental basis, with the county to foot the bill.

County Planning Director Anthony Dehaesus, however, has said the initial cost of the commissions would be approximately $15,000 to set up, plus additional incremental costs of commissioners.

Carter's plan would cost $5 billion

By RON ROACH

Associated Press Writer

SACRAMENTO (AP) — President Carter's coal conversion plan would cost California consumers $5 billion if utilities had to scrap oil and gas power plants and use coal, a top state energy official said Tuesday.

Richard Maullin, chairman of the state Energy Commission, suggested amendments to Carter's proposed legislation that he said would ease the economic burden on California and other industrial states.

Beginning in 1979, Carter's plan would phase in tax rebates for utilities that convert to coal to generate electricity. Maullin said Carter views the tax as an incentive to use coal.

"For those that can't convert, it's not an incentive, it's simply a punishment," he said.

Utilities serving some parts of California, because of air pollution problems, may be unable to convert by 1983, if even by that time, he said.

Maullin said he supports Carter's coal conversion concept, as long as states have leeway to adopt their own plans. He underscored that later when he told a reporter he was drafting an order to require San Diego Gas & Electric Co. to consider a coal-fired plant as an alternative to its Sun Desert nuclear plant proposal near Blythe.

He said a study recently completed for the commission found that the southeastern desert area of the state, where Sun Desert would be built, would be a feasible coal-fired plant site.

Maullin said the $5-billion estimate was from a survey of California utilities on the costs of replacement plants — costs that would be borne by consumers via higher rates.

He had no estimate of how much it would cost if Carter and Congress accepted California's amendments which call for state plans — not one plan for the nation — and relief from higher taxes when a utility could not convert because burning coal would violate air quality standards.

But he said he was sure the costs would be less "because I don't believe as much conversion is necessary or feasible ... as seems to be the implication of the Carter program."

"I'm concerned that by 1983 a lot of oil-burning plants will still be efficient and the tax would still be applied," Maullin said. "Why the hell should we be penalized for circumstances beyond our control?"

Keeping farmers abreast

By MIKE HEWITT

Leshar News Bureau

PITTSBURG — A spotted cucumber beetle or a tomato hornworm would be an unwelcome sight at most offices. At the Cooperative Extension office in Pittsburg, it's part of a day's work.

When a garden bug and its unhappy owner come to the Cooperative Extension, Director Joe Coony and his staff help the gardener deal with it.

An arm of the University of California Agriculture Department, the Cooperative Extension has been serving area farmers since 1917. Its main emphasis is getting the latest technical advances out to the area farmers, Coony said.

But if a backyard gardener discovers a million tiny white bugs on his dill, thus, he can turn to the Cooperative Extension for help.

"We have always been a resource for information people could have confidence in," Coony said.

The extension cannot send people out to homes to inspect plants because its staff is not large enough, Coony said.

"We'll do our best with disease and insect problems though," he said.

They will try to give advice on insects and diseases over the phone, but Coony recommends bringing a sample into the office.

The department does not do soil analyses, Coony emphasized.

"We do have quite a bit of information, and will discuss soils and how to treat them with home gardeners," he said.

The best source of information the backyard gardener is the pamphlets the department makes available to the public Coony stated.

"We have lists of drought and salt resistant plants. There are publications on ornamental plants, lawns vegetable gardens anything the gardener might be interested in," he said.

There are also publications available on food preservation, cooking, container plant care and hundreds of other subjects.

Most of the booklets can be obtained free from the Cooperative Extension office. The catalog of pamphlets is at most county library branches, Coony reports.

He would like to get two or three copies of each pamphlet at all the county libraries.

The Cooperative Extension office is located at 960 East Street, Pittsburg. The phone number is 439-4398.

Course for women in business

A few spaces are still available for the fall semester in Diablo Valley College's highly-acclaimed Professional Office Training Program.

This program for women in business is recognized throughout the Bay Area as a valuable source for top-flight secretarial and other skilled office personnel. It is designed primarily for persons having a background of basic skills who wish to acquaint themselves with the most recent developments in their field.

Most of the graduates of the program find secretarial positions in business and industry. Persons interested in the classes should call the Diablo Valley College business division, 685-1230, ext. 273, to schedule an interview with the faculty coordinator.

Classes for the fall semester will begin Sept. 12 and meet daily from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m.
